

Chicago Forum to Hear Glenn Frank at Next Program

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, one of the youngest executives in the United States, will address the Chicago Forum in the Apollo theatre, Chicago, Sunday afternoon, November 22. The hour is 3 o'clock. President Frank's subject will be, "The Outlook for Western Civilization."

The new president of the University of Wisconsin has become one of the outstanding figures in American life. He assumes his new task of large responsibilities after a brilliant career as editor of the Century magazine which he made notable as a vehicle for forceful, constructive thinking on the problems of our western civilization. His incisive, epigrammatic style in writing features also his public speaking. This will be one of the his first addresses outside of Wisconsin since assuming the presidency of the university. Perhaps it may be his inauguration as one of the real prophets of the Middle West, the heart of America.

Several north shore leaders are among the directors of the Chicago Forum which started November 1 its presentation of various nationally known leaders in discussions of important questions of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clark of 135 Fuller lane have returned from a fortnight's trip of business and pleasure in the East.
