

SERVE "PILAF" MEAL

Cardinal Tea House to Take Lead in Observing "Golden Rule Sunday" by Eating Simple Near East Fare

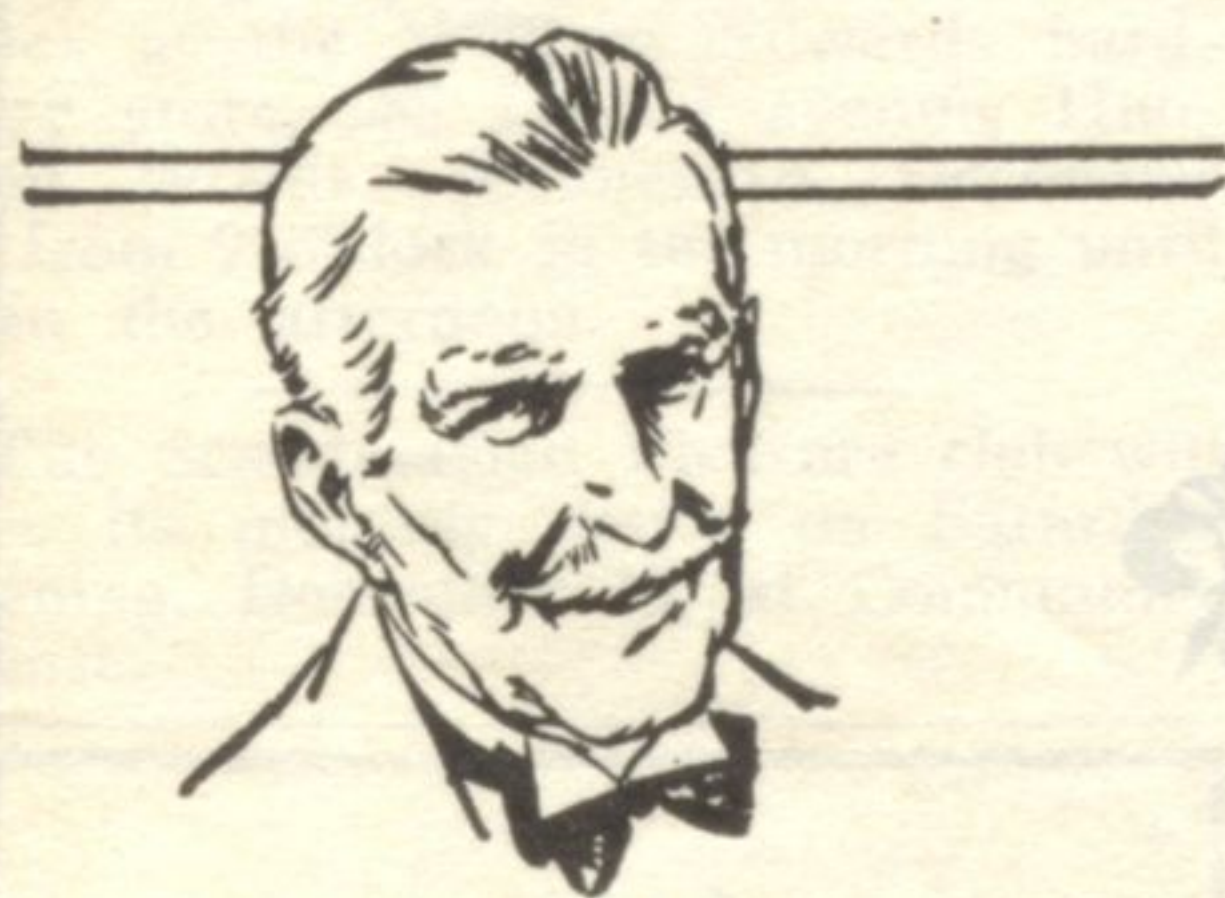

Black bread and corn syrup, "pilaf," cocoa and apricot sauce to top off with, will be served for dinner tomorrow at the Cardinal Tea House on Spruce street. Tomorrow is being observed as "Golden Rule Sunday" by the Congregational church. Contributions for the Near East Relief will be asked to support the educational and relief work of the American governmental international agency.

All families are requested to serve the menu described above at their dinner tables, and to give the association the amount saved.

The deaconesses of the church have hit upon the novel plan of opening the Cardinal Tea House, usually closed on Sunday, and serving the American Orphanage meal for the price of one dollar per person, all profits to go to the Near East Relief. Furthermore, the deaconesses will cook and serve the meal themselves.

"Pilaf" is rice cooked with tomato and meat broth. It's said to be nourishing, and black rye bread is hygienic. They will be served on bare tables, with meager accessories, and cocoa in tin cups, to remind the diners of the stern simplicity of the fare and surroundings of these Near East refugee children, the remnant of a numerous people, dispossessed of land, property, and often life itself.

So you won't need to prepare the Near East Orphanage meal at home unless you want to. Just phone the Cardinal Tea House on Saturday that you'll be there Sunday between 1 and 2 o'clock with your family, and your "Pilaf" and black bread will be waiting for you.

George G. Barbery, master; Sidney

G. L. Wellbeloved, senior warden; J. Franklin Nelson, junior warden; Allen T. Weinstock, treasurer; Hazen Foster, secretary; Dr. J. W. F. Davies, chaplain; Harley C. Winchell, senior deacon; Arne A. Mauland, junior deacon; Edwin J. Thompson, senior steward; Frank O. Neubacher, junior steward; Walter Johnson, marshal; John S. Meck, organist; Martin S. Thorsen, tyler.

Through the interest of C. L. Weeks the lodge received a gavel constructed of wood brought from the Holy Land, a prized possession for which the members were deeply grateful to Mr Weeks.

Dr. J. W. F. Davies gave a brief talk in which he paid lofty tribute to the zeal and tireless energy of W. F. Groene, retiring master of the lodge. This talk was followed by the presentation of a clock to Mr. Groene by Carlton Prouty on behalf of the lodge.

An unusual feature of the evening was the conferring of a degree upon his son by the newly elected master of the lodge.

A Christmas Suggestion

A practical gift for the whole family that will bring joy for years

MAKE your home comfortable and clean and your family healthy and happy throughout the long winter months—and for many years to come.

Enjoy freedom from care and worry. Know that while you are at the office or away on business, your family are safe and warm.

You can thoroughly depend on the McIlvaine Burner—its reliability has been demonstrated by actual service and test in all types of heating plants. It is built to last for years.

The economy of the McIlvaine Plan of operation has been definitely proved in the laboratory and by several years operation in all sizes of homes.

The McIlvaine is quiet in operation. It does not burst from a flicker to a roaring blaze every time the temperature of your house drops a few degrees.

Every detail of the McIlvaine has been carefully thought out even to the installation which has been simplified so that you may change from coal to oil in the coldest weather without discomfort or inconvenience.

The McIlvaine Plan is a simple practical development of a scientific principle of operation that is fundamentally correct—a principle "as old as the hills," and now, for the first time, successfully adapted to the use of oil for home heating.

This book gives an interesting discussion of this Plan as well as of other methods of burning oil. It is written so that you can understand it—we shall be glad to mail you a copy.
