

In Scoutdom

On Friday, December 4, Troops 2 and 3 met together. The first thing on the evening's program was an educational moving picture showing the different animals and birds used by the French armies in the World war.

After the movie Robert Hertel was made patrol leader of a new patrol in Troop 3. A demonstration of the signalling codes, the Semaphore and the International, was then held, with practice for them both. To end up the evening all three troops met in the gym where several relay races, a tug o'war and an over and under race were held.

Previous to the meeting in the gym, Troop 1 held its own meeting. They had signalling practice for the International Code, the whole troop taking part. This was possible because the assignment for the day was for everyone to know the code, and to have a flag. Gould Davies then proceeded to win another O'Grady drill down. A stunt by Silver Fox patrol was the last thing on the Troop's program. In this stunt each member of the patrol read part of an essay on reptiles.

Next week in Troop 1 the Wolf patrol is to give a stunt. In two weeks, that is, on December 18th, a signalling contest in the International Code is to be held. This contest is to be between one team of the first class scouts and another team of second class scouts and tenderfoot combined.
