Driving Car Needs Taught Just Like Playing at Chess

"In an emergency an ordinary driver sometimes forgets many of the things he could do to avoid a catastrophe," says Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "Given a situation which demands a quick stop, he will kick out the clutch and jam on the foot brakes. He may forget the hand brake, which should be used in addition to the foot brake in an emergency. The average driver may also forget the steering wheel when there might be time to swerve the course sufficiently to avoid a collision with another object; perhaps he may forget that when an emergency stop is desired, the clutch should be left engaged, so that the motor itself, having its speed reduced by removal of the right foot from the accelerator, will really assist the brakes by retarding the speed of the clutch which thus remains connected with the rear driving mechanism.

"A good driver knows all the means at his command and very likely will be able to stop or change the course of his car or otherwise avoid a serious injury to anything in the event of an emergency. He makes a serious business of driving and, like a champion chess player, is able to figure out not only his own but his opponent's moves as well."

STUDY TRUCK TRAFFIC PROBLEMS IN COUNTY

Cermak and Aids Plan Appeals for Legislation to Ease Congestion

Truck traffic on state and county roads has become quite a problem to county officials, a problem which Anton J. Cermak, president of the County board vows will solve before long.

He has called members of the highway division before him and asked them to aid in the solution of the slow moving, heavy vehicle which he declares holds back traffic so greatly during the periods of mild weather when the roads become congested.

"Truck traffic," says Mr. Cermak, "when considered in percentage of total traffic is small. It is 6.2 percent, on Indianapolis avenue, which is generally considered a heavy route for these vehicles. An average of ten of the principal entrances to Chicago, shows that only 5.4 percent of the total traffic consists of trucks. Though this traffic is light it is heavy when one considers that one truck may hold back a score or more of lighter and faster cars."

Offer Solutions

The solution advanced was as follows:

Either build truck routes or widen existing roads in order to permit four traffic lines in place of two.

A temporary relief was also suggested to the president of the County board, namely, barring the truck and other slow-moving machines from the highways on Sundays and holidays. This, it was pointed out, would have to come through legislation as present laws do not permit local authorities to close highways to certain classes of traffic, and was discouraged because it would deter mercantile pursuits. It was also suggested that this class of vehicle be prohibited from using paved roads during rush hours. However, for the same reason this plan was discouraged.

Mr. Cermak was informed by officials that the peak of traffic on paved highways occurs on Sundays between the hour of 5 and 6 P. M. In some states, it was pointed out, laws have been passed which set a minimum as well as maximum speed limit.

This positively would bring results, one official said. A survey from other parts of the country showed that motorcycle policemen remove any slow moving machine from the road for questioning. In the interim the faster running cars are allowed to proceed ahead.

Highway officials hope that roads may be widened before this relief is asked. Therefore, the eyes of the men who have traffic regulation in command have been turned to Springfield for legislation necessary to widen state and county highways.
