ISSUE SECOND APPEAL IN CENTER CAMPAIGN

Typical May Day Takes Many Residents Away from Home Before Canvassers Arrive

Canvassers for the annual budget financing of Community House had to compete with spring fever last Sunday, and since then, with the well known March lion. On Sunday every other household visited was out enjoying the sunshine and balmy temperature, while the blizzard and chill evenings of the week have made an appeal to remain by the home fireside, which campaign workers had to struggle against.

Nevertheless, renewals and new subscriptions are being obtained in good numbers, and it is hoped that in another week the requisite amount to complete the budget estimates ($12,000) will be in sight.

Those who have not yet signed pledges are reminded by the Board of Governors that the considerable increase in activity at the House during the present year has likewise increased the running expenses for labor, light, fuel, repairs, and administration. A slightly larger subscription from each contributor and some new ones will enable the Governors to make both ends meet.

Tells Center Uses

In a recent comment in reply to the query: "Who uses Community House?" Miss Mary Williams, secretary of the center, had the following report:

During the year 1925 the week-day attendance at Community House was 111,608. There was in addition an attendance of 20,653 on Sundays, making a total of 132,261 as recorded in group meetings. In addition to these, there are those groups which come in without making reservations and individuals who casually stroll into the House.

This is the largest attendance ever recorded at Community House during the year and when it is thought of in terms of the total population of the village, it is rather significant.

Have 97 Organizations

Ninety-seven organizations, some meeting once or twice a week, some twice a month, and others monthly, are now using the House. In addition to these there are eight groups which meet annually, thus making a total of 105 organizations. Of this number 57 were organized by Community House. Ninety-three women are now enrolled in the morning gymnasium class, meeting twice a week.

There are 263 volunteer workers assisting in the regular work of the House. Twenty-five women of the community are giving evenings regularly each month as hostesses.

During the past fourteen years, Community House has provided an office for the nurse employed by the Relief and Aid Society.

Beauty Parlor Owner Is Called by Kin's Death

Miss Ethel M. Taylor, of the Indu Beauty Parlor, 818 Elm street, Winnetka, returned Wednesday morning from Toronto, Canada, where she was summoned last week by the death of her sister, Mrs. Charles Harrison, which occurred February 25, following a prolonged illness. Miss Taylor did not arrive until after her sister had passed away. The husband and one son survive. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.
