

Gives Series of Talks on Subject of Prayer

Has prayer a growing or diminishing place in the religious life? How has science affected our ideas of prayer? What may be accomplished by prayer? These and other timely questions will be considered in a series of three talks on prayer, by the Rev. Thomas A. Goodwin, in the Congregational church. The first address will be given Wednesday, March 10, at 8 o'clock, in the church auditorium, on "Obstacles to Prayer." The topic on March 17, will be "Learning to Pray," and the concluding discussion will deal with "Possibilities of Prayer." These meetings are part of the Lenten program of the church, and everyone is very welcome.

C. OF C. OBJECTS TO ZONING BOARD FINDING

with the buyers, but I suppose this is impossible.

Robert Kingery, chairman of the Zoning board, replied to the attacks on the report by telling the council that all of the points brought up by the representatives of the Improvement association had been considered by the board before the recommendation was made. He then read a communication from Charles L. Byron, a member of the Zoning body who was away when the recommendation was made. Mr. Byron's report stated that he had studied the case and that he agreed with the other members of the board who recommended that the subdivision be zoned both for commercial and residential purposes. Coram T. Davis was the only member to file a dissenting opinion. This was published in the WINNETKA TALK of last week.

The third attack on the board's finding came in the form of a letter received by the council from the Winnetka Chamber of Commerce. It read as follows:

"The Village of Winnetka, by reason of its recently enlarged limits, is confronted with the question of additional commercial area involving approximately 1,000 feet of additional frontage and located in what is commonly recognized as the Indian Hill section.

"The creation of another business section at the south end of the village is contrary to the wishes of the resident community it proposes to serve.

"In event of another business zone, thereby practically connecting the north and south limits of Winnetka, business interests predict the eventual loss of co-operation, largely due to the influx of undesirable tenants, the possibility of sectional strife and the elimination, in time, of Winnetka Beautiful.

"Proposition Inconsistent"

"The proposition is inconsistent because of limitations and restrictions placed on the original business area of Winnetka, and the further fact that several thousand feet of business frontage in Winnetka proper are yet to be improved.

"The importance of a new business area at the south end of the village is incomparable to the efforts that you gentlemen and your predecessors have devoted to the proper proportion and systematic control of the original business area of Winnetka.

"In summing up the above, we contend that Indian Hill residents have been satisfactorily served all these years and are opposed to the enlargement of the business area; that undeveloped commercial and industrial tracts of considerable frontage exist today in Winnetka proper; that in establishing three distinct commercial areas in any village the size of Winnetka we are not consistent with ourselves, the zoning law, or the hitherto well defined program."

This communication was placed in the files and the members of the council voted to consider the matter further with the Zoning board.

Mrs. H. C. Curry of 797 Willow road left on February 25 for Kansas City, Mo. She is visiting relatives and will be away several weeks.

Legionnaires Hear Story Of Custer Fight

The regular monthly meeting of Winnetka Post No. 10, American Legion, at Post headquarters, Community House, Monday evening, was one of the most interesting sessions of the winter.

Following a 6:30 o'clock dinner, also served at Community House, and at which Col. William A. Graham, of Chicago, Judge Advocate of the Sixth Corps area, was a guest, the Post assembled in its headquarters room to listen to a most interesting address by Colonel Graham on the Battle of the Little Big Horn, better known as Custer's Last Fight.

A large wall map showing the location of the various points from which the advance was made by Custer's men on the Sioux warriors, was used by Colonel Graham. His knowledge of the details of this important historical affair, his pleasing manner of description and a resume of the engagement from a military point of view, proved one of the most interesting programs which the Post has been permitted to enjoy for a long time. At the conclusion of his address Colonel Graham was given a rising vote of thanks by the Post.

Colonel Graham was with the 88th Division in France, and always enjoys an occasion to meet with the members of the Winnetka Post, one of the live American Legion organizations of the north shore.

At the business session, which was presided over by Commander Edward R. Lewis, the Post voted to put on a minstrel show, to be given by Post members, sometime the latter part of April.

On March 17 and 18, at Community House, the Post has arranged to give some very interesting and instructive motion pictures, showing in action the troops of the 33rd Division, which comprised the Illinois National Guard; the 149th Field Artillery, which was recruited along the north shore and was assigned to the Rainbow Division; and the 86th Division, the National Army.

Persons who have seen these pictures are enthusiastic about them, and say they are particularly interesting from a local point of view as it is possible to distinguish some of the Winnetka men, especially those of the 149th, comprising so many Winnetkans and in command of Col. Henry J. Reilly, then a Winnetka resident.

Country Day Girls Romp Away With Cage Honors

On February 24 the Girls' first team from North Shore Country Day school defeated the Kemper hall team, 24 to 19, while the second teams were playing a 71 to 10 game in favor of North Shores. On the same date the Girls' First team from North Shore defeated the Marywood team 25 to 10. On February 20 a group of Northwestern alumni girls were also defeated by the North Shore Girls' first team, 32 to 14.
