 Four hundred newsboys, members of the Chicago newsboys' union, were hosts at a testimonial dinner given to Walter A. Tuesday Lectures
Real Inspiration,
Writes Listener
 (Contributed)

The Rev. James Austin Richards' Tuesday morning talks in the Neighborhood room of Community House are very well attended and one sees there many of the women of the village who are living their lives for the common good of all. It is too bad that anyone who realizes the significance of inspiration in the living of such a life, should miss any of these talks. They are centered about "The Message of the New Isaiah" and the lecture of the current week was concerned with the thought which this writer brought to the people of his day concerning suffering. It brought immediate hope to the exiled Jews of a salvation for their nation through the God-like life of the individual and was prophetic of the coming of Jesus. One's imagination is stirred by this vision of the power and beauty of individual life lived in communion with and obedience to the will of God. He understood and makes us understand the fruitfulness of unmerited suffering. There is no poetry more beautiful than is found in these chapters of Isaiah, no writing about God that presents him so vividly as the ruler of the vast and limitless universe, while it comforts us with the tenderness of His understanding and love of those men who seek His council in the trials which beset them.

Mr. Richards is a teacher of imagination and of inspiration and his scholarship is no where more evident than in these Tuesday morning talks. That anyone should miss them through a multiplicity of engagements is a misfortune but that anyone should miss them because he did not know about them would be a greater misfortune, so you are reminded again that the talks on Tuesday mornings at ten in the Neighborhood room at Community House.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Renwick of 1457 Asbury avenue spent last week-end as the guest of friends in St. Louis.
