Potter and Van Duzer, Baker, Paddy Driscoll and a host of others have shone brilliantly in football at Northwestern university. Also remember that Walter Dill Scott played football with the Purple in the early nineties. He is now prexy and the most loyal of them all.

BOYS, YOU CAN'T GO WRONG ON THIS TRIP!

kings in the great hall of which was signed the peace treaty ending the World War. One should see the Grand Trianon, the Petit Trianon, the Dairy Farm and the magnificent grounds fronting the palace.

A trip over the battlefields of France is intensely interesting. Much of the wreckage has been repaired, yet there is still abundant evidence of that terrific struggle. Great sections where the fighting was most fierce still remain as they were on Armistice Day, softened somewhat by the hand of time. A visit to the bridge at Chateau Thierry, the grave of Quentin Roosevelt and the Romagne Cemetery in the Argonne will never be forgotten.

Sail on June 30

The party will sail from New York City on June 30 on the steamship President Roosevelt, returning to New York August 1. While abroad the boys will see the sights of interest in each of the countries visited. An extensive motor trip through the Shakespearean country will be one feature of the visit to England.

Evanston Famed as Home of the Drama League of America

Since the Drama League of America was started in Evanston fifteen years ago, the eyes of the nation have been on the city as the center of the drama study movement.

The League was the outgrowth of the work of a little group of Evanston women who had been meeting for 15 years informally to study the drama. It was founded April 25, 1910. The League has branches all over the United States.

Evanston still has its Drama club with a membership of several hundred women which brings the foremost people of the country connected with things dramatic and things literary as speakers to their meetings, and which, with the School of Speech of Northwestern university, fosters a "Town and Gown" movement that supports playwriting classes, a playshop where these plays are produced, and a Children's theater, and is working towards a Little Theater for the city.

The North Shore Theater Guild players, known widely for their excellence of semi-professional dramatic production, include a number from Evanston and the association supporting it has large local membership.

These are but few of the organized dramatic activities of the community which are as numerous and varied as those of any other community of the country.

The first life-saving station on the north shore was organized at and by Northwestern university. Its history will thrill you with stories of heroism in which Northwestern students took leading parts.
