

"A friend of mine bought some recently," many young women tell us. "I could hardly believe they cost only a dollar. And she says they're wearing wonderfully."

A New Process of Construction
Now Brings to You

A Superior Chiffon Hose Priced as Low as $1

NOT UNTIL the manufacture of the hose we are now offering, was a really satisfactory method of making a seamless foot perfected. It is a much less expensive process than making a seamed foot and the cost saved in the construction is put into the quality. That's why we were able to secure such a remarkably fine hose to sell at a dollar.

The woman with sensitive feet, the one who has been searching so long for a seamless foot that fits, will be glad to know these points about our new dollar hose:

1. They are silk chiffon to the welt and therefore may be worn with short skirts or rolled without bulkiness.
2. They are smart looking because they are smoothly and finely knit of pure silk.
3. They fit in calf, ankle, instep and toe. And because they fit they wear.
4. There is plenty of "stretch" in the fine lisle garter top.

We carry these hose regularly in white—moonlight—shadow—piping rock—grain—biscuit—lariat—ecstasy—rose taupe—shell—French nude.

The Gates of Treves

(From The Trevian, New Trier Annual for 1909)

The City of Treves or Trier, which is the mother of our New Trier, is in the Rhine Province, Prussia, on the Moselle river. It is said to be the oldest city of Germany and certainly contains more Roman antiquities than any other city in Northern Europe. Here a settlement was probably founded by Augustus in the territory of the Treveri, a tribe of Belgic Gauls that had been conquered by Caesar. During the period of the Empire it was one of the most important of the provincial cities.

One of the most interesting of the old Roman relics is the Porta Nigra, the picture of which appears on our school seal. This is a fortified city gate flanked by two towers. It is three stories high, has two gateways and is constructed of huge blocks of sandstone blackened with age. The structure belongs to the third century of our era. In the eleventh century the east tower was occupied by a Greek hermit named Simeon. On his death it was converted into two churches, one above the other.

The cathedral, the nucleus of which was a basilica erected by Valentinian, I, probably as a market, is one of the oldest churches in Germany. The building contains many relics, among them the famous seamless or Holy Coat, said to have been worn by Jesus Christ. According to the legend the Empress Helena brought it to Treves in 1106. In the sixteenth century it became a very fruitful source of revenue. It is said to have attracted a million and a half pilgrims.

The Roman palace is now only a picturesque ruin, but the Amphitheater is still in excellent preservation. The east half is built into the rocky side of a hill. The gateways are at the north and south ends, each having three openings, the center one leading to the arena, those at the sides to the seats, which accommodated seven or eight thousand spectators. The dens for the wild beasts and the chambers for the gladiators are still traceable. It is here that Constantine is said to have had several thousand Franks with their leaders torn to pieces by the wild beasts.

The Roman Baths evidently formed an imposing structure. The position of the baths, the frigidarium, the tepidarium and the caldarium, the heating apparatus and other parts of the building can still be traced.

T.N.T. Is Highest Honor for New Trier Scholar

The highest all-around distinction a student can attain at New Trier high school is election to T. N. T. The members are chosen on the basis of their scholarship, character and participation and prominence in student activities. They are selected by the deans with the advice of the entire faculty. Each year sixteen juniors and eight seniors are given this honor.

AIDS STUDENTS OF GERMAN

The German club has been organized by the students of the German department at New Trier high school for the purpose of giving attention to German literature and music, and securing conversational practice. Meetings take place once a month with programs consisting of music, readings and talks followed by a social hour for conversation and games.
