Country Day Terminates Year's Work This Week

While the commencement exercises relating to the graduation of the senior class have already taken place at the North Shore Country Day school, as recounted elsewhere in this issue of Winnetka Talk, the exercises for certain of the lower grades have been continued through the current week.

This arrangement is deliberately designed to afford the seniors better opportunity in the taking of examinations and other special work, outside their school courses.

For the upper school, the present week has been largely occupied with examinations and the last school exercises occurred Friday, June 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ehrlich and their son, Grant, 45 Warwick avenue, have returned from a visit at Hot Springs, Va.

NEW TRIER PAGEANT IS COLORFUL AFFAIR

Presented to Packed Houses Last Monday and Tuesday at the School Auditorium

"Enlightenment," New Trier high school's anniversary pageant, presented last Monday and Tuesday, was by far the most ambitious dramatic production the school has ever attempted, and it was one of the most successful. The pageant was presented two evenings and one afternoon before packed houses, and the audiences showed no lack of enthusiasm at any time during the two and one-half hour performance.

The pageant abounded in colorful costumes—in fact, there were so many of them that it was difficult to pay them all the attention they deserved. Perhaps the most brilliant part of the pageant, from this standpoint, was the third act, a scene in the court of King Thought, when at one time there were at least 50 characters on the stage, all in gorgeous costumes.

All those who took part did very well and the whole affair had an almost professional aspect. The book was written by C. Russell Small, a member of the faculty, and besides being an excellent portrayal of the history of the school, was exceedingly interesting and had plenty of clever lines and dramatic situations.

Very Large Cast

Nearly 500 pupils of the school, and others, took part in the pageant. Miss Elizabeth Stanwood, head of the dramatic department, was general director, and was assisted by Miss Lillian Fogg, who coached the dancers, Mrs. Marion E. Cotton and J. C. Schumacher, who supervised the music; Miss Olive L. Grover, who managed the stage settings; Miss Catherine Murphy, who supervised art work; Mr. C. H. Jones, who managed the stage lighting effects; H. H. Herron, who managed publicity; and Miss Irma Moschel, who had charge of the costumes.

Among those who had important parts in the pageant were Elizabeth Eberhart, The Girl; Robert Stephens, The Boy; Eunice Stoddard, Enlightenment; Charles Troy, Time; Marjorie Solomon, The Wind; W. Harlan Ware, Ignorance; Marcia Lauer, Vision; John Cogswell, Potens; Elizabeth DeBerard Arta; Frank Gilchrist, Metros; Doris Fraser, Musica; Mary Elizabeth Marshall, Scriba; Louis Weber, Sums; Harry Wilson The World; Miss Elizabeth E. Packer, Alma Mater; Ruth Kinne, The Unseen; Marian Page, The Unknown; Robert Kenyon, Arbiter Census; Marcia Lauer, Queen Mother; Margaret Wissman, Future; Catherine Ranney, Progress; Marion McKinnon, Retrogression; Warren Seibold, King Thought; Carl Keith, Laughter; Miss Alice Burchard, Faculty; Miss Olive L. Grover, The Colors.

The pageant was given for the purpose of commemorating the twenty-fifth birthday of the school, which is celebrated this year. Besides those whose names are mentioned above, F. E. Clerk, principal of the school, and members of the school board, past and present, took part.
