IF your dealer doesn't handle Hydrox, don't ask him why, tell him why.

He probably pays less for what he does handle and tries to get the same price as he would for Hydrox.

And you can't blame him much so long as you don't complain.

It is true he ought to buy what he knows is purest and best for you. But, after all, dealers are only human. And if he thinks what is best for his pocketbook doesn't happen to be best for your stomach, why should he tell you if you don't know the difference.

Hydrox puts far more pure cream into its Ice Cream than the State Food Law demands.

Pure cream costs money. If you don't demand it, of course you don't get it—unless you go to a Hydrox Agency.
