

WINNETKANS WITNESS SCHOOL GRADUATION

Take Keen Interest in Work of Chicago Junior School for Underprivileged Boys

The annual graduation exercises of the Chicago Junior School, Elgin, Ill., were attended by several Winnetka people, friends of the school, Mrs. Theodore Coyne, Mrs. Harry Lay, Mrs. Wiley Huddle and Mrs. Charles Aspenwall. The exercises were held Saturday afternoon, June 26, at 3 o'clock, the Winnetka guests driving over in a group.

Founded as a home and farm school, located on the Fox river, one mile north of Elgin, the school is providing a home atmosphere "for underprivileged boys and girls to inspire them with ideals of right living."

Recognizing the good that this school is doing for boys, friends and trustees of the school are anxious to endow a dormitory for girls, so that brothers and sisters will not have to be separated. To do this $100,000 must be raised.

Presents Painting

Anita Willetts-Burnham, 1047 Tower road, Winnetka, a friend of the school, recently painted a picture of a certain lovely spot on the school grounds. This painting was formally presented to the school at a dinner given at the Sovereign hotel, Chicago. The dinner was given to interest people of educational interest and means, in the school.

There on the banks of the Fox river, is a school built on a hundred-acre site, wooded and hilly. Besides school work, which, upon graduation entitles a boy to enter any Chicago public high school without further examination, play, outdoor work and recreation are encouraged.

Trained teachers study with the boys. A trained recreational director plays with them. An expert gardener teaches gardening. Sheep, cows, pigs, rabbits and even hives of bees are raised on the farm, and the care of these animals is taught.

Avoid Institutional Idea

There is a house mother in charge of each of the two dormitories. A member of the staff sits at each table in the dining room, with the seven boys at each table. Instead of herding the boys around one long institutional table, they are grouped in small numbers.

Religious services are non-denominational, and on Sundays, if parents wish their boys to attend certain churches in Elgin, accommodations are made for them to do so.

The school has offices at Room 711, 162 N. State street, Chicago, and welcomes help in three forms:

(a) By making an immediate donation. (b) By joining a local Branch of Friends of Chicago Junior and helping with its activities. (c) By contributing monthly, quarterly or yearly to the general expense fund or the building endowment fund.

The board of trustees includes Mrs. Bion J. Arnold, John G. Dewar, Mrs. Andrew G. Morse, Miss Harriet Straith-Miller, Mrs. Harriet A. Wile, and many others. The advisory board includes such leaders as Miss Jane Addams, Judge Victor P. Arnold, Mrs. Edward S. Bailey, Judge Harry M. Fisher, Judge K. M. Landis, Miss Harriet Vittum, and others interested and active in educational and social work.

A series of competitive games and races were enjoyed from 10 a. m., when the picnic started, until supper time. WAUKEGAN NOSES OUT LOCALS IN FAST GAME

Playfield Nine to Meet Northbrook and Wilmette Teams in Holiday Games

Winnetka was nosed out in an uphill battle last Sunday with Waukegan by a score of 3 to 2. Pete Luchessi pitched a fine game for the locals allowing but four hits. Neither team made a hit or score until the fifth inning. In this disastrous session Luchessi weakened for a moment, and allowed two runs to score.

Kola, Waukegan pitcher, opened this round with a slow roller toward first base. Knox came in for the ball but no one covered the bag, and it went for a hit. Pete then walked Gust, and Remick sacrificed his mates along. Trust immediately scored both runners by a line single past third base. This concluded Waukegan's scoring until the eighth inning, when a single by Cassel, a sacrifice and another hit ended their rally.

Winnetka attempted to bring the game out of the fire in their lucky seventh. After one was out Carpenter walked. Bartz flied out, and Luchessi came through with a double to deep center, scoring Carpenter. Pete was left stranded on second when Russ Smith fanned.

In the home half of the ninth the local boys made a game attempt. After one was out Welch lined a double to left center, Earl Smith, who was playing a bang-up game at short, came through with a single past third, putting Welch on third. Larry Knox sent a long sacrifice fly to left, scoring Welch; Carpenter then ended the fray with a long fly to left field.

Sunday, July 4, Northbrook will be Winnetka's guests at the Playfield at 3 o'clock.

Monday, July 5, the boys will travel to Wilmette where the supremacy of the two towns will be decided. This game will start at 10 o'clock, a. m., sharp. Smith will pitch for the locals and Carey will catch. In the afternoon, a return game with Northbrook will be played. Knox or Luchessi will twirl this game, and Carey or Bartz will do the receiving.
