GIVE LAST CONCERT

Season of Children's Concerts at Ravinia Ends Thursday with Request Program of Music and Dances

By RUTHEDA L. PRETZLEL

"You've been a very good audience," Eric DeLamarter told the children at Ravinia last Thursday afternoon, "you've been interested, and we were glad to play for you. Goodbye, then, until next June." And so this season of the children's afternoon concerts is closed. A love of the best in music and recognition of the names and composers of many orchestral compositions, and of the instruments of the orchestra, is what the children have gained by the summer concerts. Next year's season is eagerly and impatiently looked forward to, one can tell from the faces of the kiddies as they trooped to the train at the close of Thursday's concert.

A request program for the last concert brought several of the loveliest Arlan W. Converse, 396 Hawthorn pieces the orchestra has ever played. lane, is among the fifty Chicago bank- Chabrier's "Marche Joyeuse" was the ers who have enrolled for attendance first; a violin and cello duet, by Mr. at the fifty-second annual convention Hancock and Mr. Wallenstein, with of the American Bankers' association occasional accompaniment by the orlin Los Angeles from October 4 to 7. chestra, was the second. It was the Duet Dance from Balet Suite by the Russian Glazounnow. Beethoven's "Slow Movement from the Fifth Symphony" was the next played, and then came "Dance Macabre" by Saint Seans. The latter always delights the audience, and Mr. DeLamarter had to play over again the part where the skeleton's bones rattle merrily. The last number was the Minuet and Barcarolle from "Tales of Hoffman," by Offenbach.

After the intermission, John F. Dewar's international dancers gave Scotch, English and Irish dances. Four of girls in Scotch "plaidies" danced the Reel O'Tulloch. A boy in kilts gave the Highland Fling, and a girl showed how the Shean Trews is done. Another girl brought out a fierce looking sword and danced around it.

The Sailor's Hornpipe, in the English group, by a smart little sailor girl, was especially good. Girls who skip rope (and what girl does not!) learned a few new tricks when a demure Sunbonnet Sue exhibited the Skipping Rope Dance.

The last group was the well-liked

Irish Jig, and the Irish Clog.

The officers and members of the Ravinia Club are giving a picnic lunch next week Thursday at the home of Mrs. William Sutherland, 70 Harbor street, for its president, Mrs. Ralph H. Poole. Mrs. Poole is leaving for Europe shortly, and the annual meeting will not be held until her return. The members of the Ravinia committee are to be commended for their faithful and efficient work throughout the summer. One has but to take cognizance of the overflowing pavilion and the enthusiasm of the audience to know that their work has not been in vain.

ASSISTANT LIBRARIAN

Another member of the faculty of New Trier High school who has been added to the steadily growing staff this year, is Miss Dorothy Scharf, who graduated from the high school in 1920 and will take the position of assistant librarian.
