INVITE MEN TO ATTEND SUNDAY MORNING CLASS

Rev. James Austin Richards to Speak at First Session Tomorrow;
Study Gospel of John

The Men's Sunday Morning class has succeeded in securing the Rev. James Austin Richards, minister of the Congregational church, for its opening course of studies which are to be on the Gospel of John. For a year or two there has been an urgent call on the part of many members of the class for more definite Bible study. These, and indeed all, will be pleased at this announcement, it is felt.

"The Gospel of John," explains a member of the class "has sometimes seemed a bit mystical and introspective to this modern matter-of-fact age. And yet perhaps a little more of the contemplative would be better for us. The most modern scholarship tends to make the date of authorship of this gospel very late—so late in fact as to suggest a man who could not have been contemporary with Jesus. Thus are there in this subject matters of keen interest for varying points of view. Mr. Richards may be depended upon to make the studies full of interest, reverent and constructive.

"The session next Sunday will be devoted to some of the questions raised by the Gospel of John and the spirit of the studies."

The members of the class will remember a year or more ago raising $600 for Clarence Colsted in India, the Congregational church's own missionary. This was in response to his suggestion of the possibilities of service if he had but a few simple agricultural implements. These have been bought, are in use and are producing results. A letter has been received in Mr. Wolsted's best style, telling how the money was used and what the purchases are accomplishing. It is illustrated with photographs.

"Come out Sunday morning and renew class friendships," is the appeal to members. "Come out and enjoy Mr. Richards." Come out and see what our contribution is accomplishing on the other side of the world. Ask that new neighbor, or old one, next door, or down the street to come along with you. The Men's Sunday Morning class is one of Winnetka's going concerns. Every man in the community is welcome on his own without any introduction. At Community House every Sunday morning during the winter, at 9:30 o'clock.
