BOOK LOVERS!

If you haven't read these—they're ready for you here! And our discriminatingly-assembled collection of books includes not only these newer things, but the standard older books one needs in a really satisfying library.

The Human Adventure

Harper & Bros. $10
being two volumes: "The Conquest of Civilization" by Professor James H. Breasted, and "The Ordeal of Civilization" by James Harvey Robinson. A pair of epoch-making volumes that every booklover will want to add to his permanent collection.

Practical Auction Bridge

By Wynn Ferguson
Doran $2.00
An understandingly-written, easily-understood explanation of bridge that is as good for experts as it is for beginners.

The White Devil's Mate

By Lewis Stanton
Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $2.50
People who like The Ossendowski kind of book will certainly enjoy "The White Devil's Mate." We recommend it to anybody, in fact, who likes to be completely absorbed by a book!

The Queen of Roumania's Fairy Book.

Frederick A. Stokes $3.00
Queen Marie herself has gathered together these delightful fairy stories. They give one—perhaps more perfectly than a heavy treatise on the subject could—the lore, the traditions, the charm of her country.

The World's Best Short Stories of 1926

Doran $2.50
Every reader of modern short stories, whatever his taste, will agree that these are pretty close to being the best stories of 1926.

Gabrielle

By W. B. Maxwell
Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.00
W. B. Maxwell's large following will delight in this intriguing new work.

These books, and many more new ones, are to be found at Lord's—just inside the Davis Street Entrance.

Reviews of New Books

"SWEEPINGS"—Lester Cohen.

"Sweepings" by Lester Cohen, is an uncommon book written in an uncommonly fine way. It is a story of Chicago, almost an epic of the growth of the city, and more particularly of the Pardway family and its great bargain store.

Daniel and Thane Pardway planned "The Bazaar" while Chicago's ruins were still smoking, and what showed greater courage they bought the land for it, on the spot where some day the street cars would turn around to go back the other way. They are well drawn characters, these two, each powerful in his way, each appealing, and totally different.

It is a powerful, even a gripping story, it catches your emotions and twists them about with the fate of its characters as too few stories are able to do. It is a first novel, written without flourishes, interestingly, in a concise swift moving manner which seems often to be conversational.

New Trier Grad Given Part in New York Play

Charles Fleischman, a resident of Kenilworth and a graduate of New Trier High school in the class of 1926, has been given a part in a play called "Periphery," which opened the first of the month in New York, it was learned this week. The play is expected to reach Chicago about the first of the coming year. Fleischman is playing under the name of Charles Rainsfords. He was very prominent in New Trier dramatics, taking a leading part in "The New Lady Bantock," as well as minor parts in "Alice in Wonderland" and "The Road to Yesterday." He belonged to the Dramatic, French and Debating clubs. He was a member of the North Shore Players and took parts in both Winnetka and Evanston.

Just Paragraphs

Padraic Colum's book, "The Road Round Ireland," which was published September 28, contains character sketches of Irish patriots and writers and is illustrated by the new school of Irish painters.

Two new volumes of poems will be published this fall which are worthy of mention—"Dark of the Moon" by Sara Teasdale and "Eve Walks in Her Garden" by Louise Ayres Garnett. The latter book is of special interest to people on the north shore.

Thomas Hardy's new book of poems, "Human Shows, Far Phantasies, Songs and Trifles" is described by the "Bookman," as "portraits of men and women who are dull enough in themselves and live for us by the wizardry of the seer who has discovered where the lines of feeling lie deepest."

Miss Esther Gould, whose reviews appear every week on this page, is giving a series of radio talks from W. H. T. (Wrigley Bldg.) Chicago, every Tuesday morning at 10:45, which should be of interest to those who want timely suggestions as to what to read.
