The Radiola Super-Hetrodyne

The set sketched is the Radiola 25, composed of a six tube radio receiving set with solid mahogany cabinet with plenty of room for batteries and accessories.

$165 with radiotrons

Radiola Super-Hetrodyne marks the known limit of selectivity. It overcomes interference between two stations on close wavelengths or frequencies more effectively than any other circuit. In other words, a Radiola Super-Hetrodyne admits only a certain band of frequencies. No other band can be received.
