Press Notices

Augusta Lenska, the sensation of last year's May Festival, was again a phenomenal success. Homer and Martinelli were the most famous in their field, but to pick the true sensation of the Festival, the most gracious and charming in personality, the lady of the opera with sheer genius of voice, the choice of the Festival is hardly in doubt—Augusta Lenska, leading Wagnerian contralto with the Chicago Civic Opera Co.

Michigan Daily—Ann Arbor,
May 22, 1926.

Madame Lenska possesses a contralto voice of great beauty and color as well as histrionic talents. Overwhelming applause rewarded Madame Lenska's singing of the celebrated aria.

The Gazette—Montreal,
April 22, 1926.

The most remarkable personality of the evening was without doubt Augusta Lenska. Gifted with a really extraordinary contralto voice, powerful and smooth in the highest as well as the lowest registers.

Translation—La Patrie—Montreal,
April 26, 1926.

SKOKIE-MADE PAPER TO BE ISSUED SOON

The Journalist, School Publication, is Product of Print Shops at Skokie

The Journalist, the newspaper of the Winnetka public schools, will make its first appearance of the present school year this month, along about Hallowe'en time, with a cover appropriately designed and printed in black and orange, favorite colors of the witches and spooks and which, also are the Skokie school colors. The art department at Skokie school designed and made the cut for the front cover page.

The Winnetka public schools have organized the newspaper staff for the present school year, and throughout the business, editorial and advertising departments, as well as in the print shop, all is hustle and bustle to get to press in time with the current issue. There will be an issue each month until the first of the year, and then, if possible, the Journalist will be issued semi-monthly.

The past four years The Journalist has been issued without a cover page, but this year a cover will be made an attractive feature of the publication. The pupils in the art department at Skokie are producing some exceedingly clever designs, many of which the public this year will be permitted to enjoy as a feature of the school paper, it is said.

All the work of making The Journalist is done by the pupils. They sell the advertisements, solicit the subscriptions, write the matter for the paper, set the ads and the reading matter, make up the forms, bind and trim their papers 'neverthing. Job printing for the schools is also executed in the print shop at Skokie school, where Wayne L. Claxton is in charge of this course. It is one of the elective courses and also one of the most popular, it is said.

The shop is equipped with two Gordon presses, a paper cutter, imposing stones, cabinets of type and everything complete for the instruction of youth in the art preservative.

The editor in chief is elected by the student council and he, in turn, chooses his various assistants, or staff. The business manager and the advertising staff are chosen from among the print shop pupils, because of the importance of their possessing practical knowledge of the problems they are to handle in the execution of their respective duties.

Those who will pilot The Journalist this year are:

John Barden, editor in chief; Wayne Andrews and Ruth Offner, editorial department; Lois Goldstein, Louise Wagner, Maryanna Hilton, and David Crawford, literary department; Jamie O'Dell and Page Mergentheim, feature department; Alan Robinson, joke department; Betsy Ballard, personal department; Eugene Nickels and Anne Palmer, assembly department; Eugene Schuett and Marjorie McLaren, athletic department; Joe Miller, Superintendent's column; Jane Cophorne, Alumni notes; Bill Kidd is business manager and has as his assistant, Olin Sethness; Paul Netterstrom has been placed in charge of the advertising department with Robert Graves, as assistant.

Troubadors Inaugurate Season; Need Songsters

The Troubadours, well-known to Winnetka people as a group of musically inclined young men, have begun their year's work, and are holding regular meetings every Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock at Community House.

Mr. Gunn of Hubbard Woods conducts the boys, and is arranging an elaborate program for the year, he announces. About twenty men appeared at the first meeting, but the club needs first tenors and basses, they announce. The date for the first concert has not been set, but it is expected to be some time the first of next year.

Mrs. Ira C. Darling, 256 Kenilworth avenue, leaves Kenilworth on Monday, October 18, for a two weeks' trip to New York.
