

"CAPTAIN APPLEJACK"

New Trier High School Dramatic Club to Present Walter Hackett Play Saturday, November 20

By G. W. C.

"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum,
Fifteen men on a dead man's chest,
Fifteen men on a dead man's chest,
Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum."

What visions and dashing scenes that vigorous old ditty brings before the eyes of all boys—boys of sixty as well as sixteen. Pirates! Flashing cutlasses! Ransomed maidens! Gold!

Mutiny! And all the other thrilling things that go with the glamour of old-time piracy.

And wouldn't it be a splendid adventure for anyone to have those visions come true and to see those scenes enacted before his very eyes? Well, anyone can make those visions come true. How? Simply by buying a ticket for "Captain Applejack," a play by Walter Hackett, which the New Trier Dramatic club is going to present Saturday evening, November 20, in the high school auditorium.

In this play Mr. Hackett has written a rollicking, adventurous comedy, which tells how one Ambrose Apple-john, becoming bored with the rut into which he has fallen, tries to get out of it. One thing that helps him greatly and also shows him that ruts aren't so bad after all is a glorious piratical dream that he has. In his dream he is seen as Captain Applejack, a hearty pirate of the seventeenth century. And it is in this dream that the audience will be thrilled by daggers and villains and a fair captured maiden.

However, this pirate scene is not the only one that provides thrills, for the rest of the play abounds with pistols and burglars and all sorts of escapades.

And in between every two thrills in "Captain Applejack" there is a good, big laugh. One of the biggest of these follows when Ambrose, forgetting that he is no longer Applejack, the pirate, as he was in his dream, shocks his dear, respectable Auntie by telling her to "stir her stumps."

So if anyone feels the need of getting out of a rut, let "Captain Applejack" help him, with his rollicking, chanty, "Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum."

Show Prevention Better Than Cure in Social Service

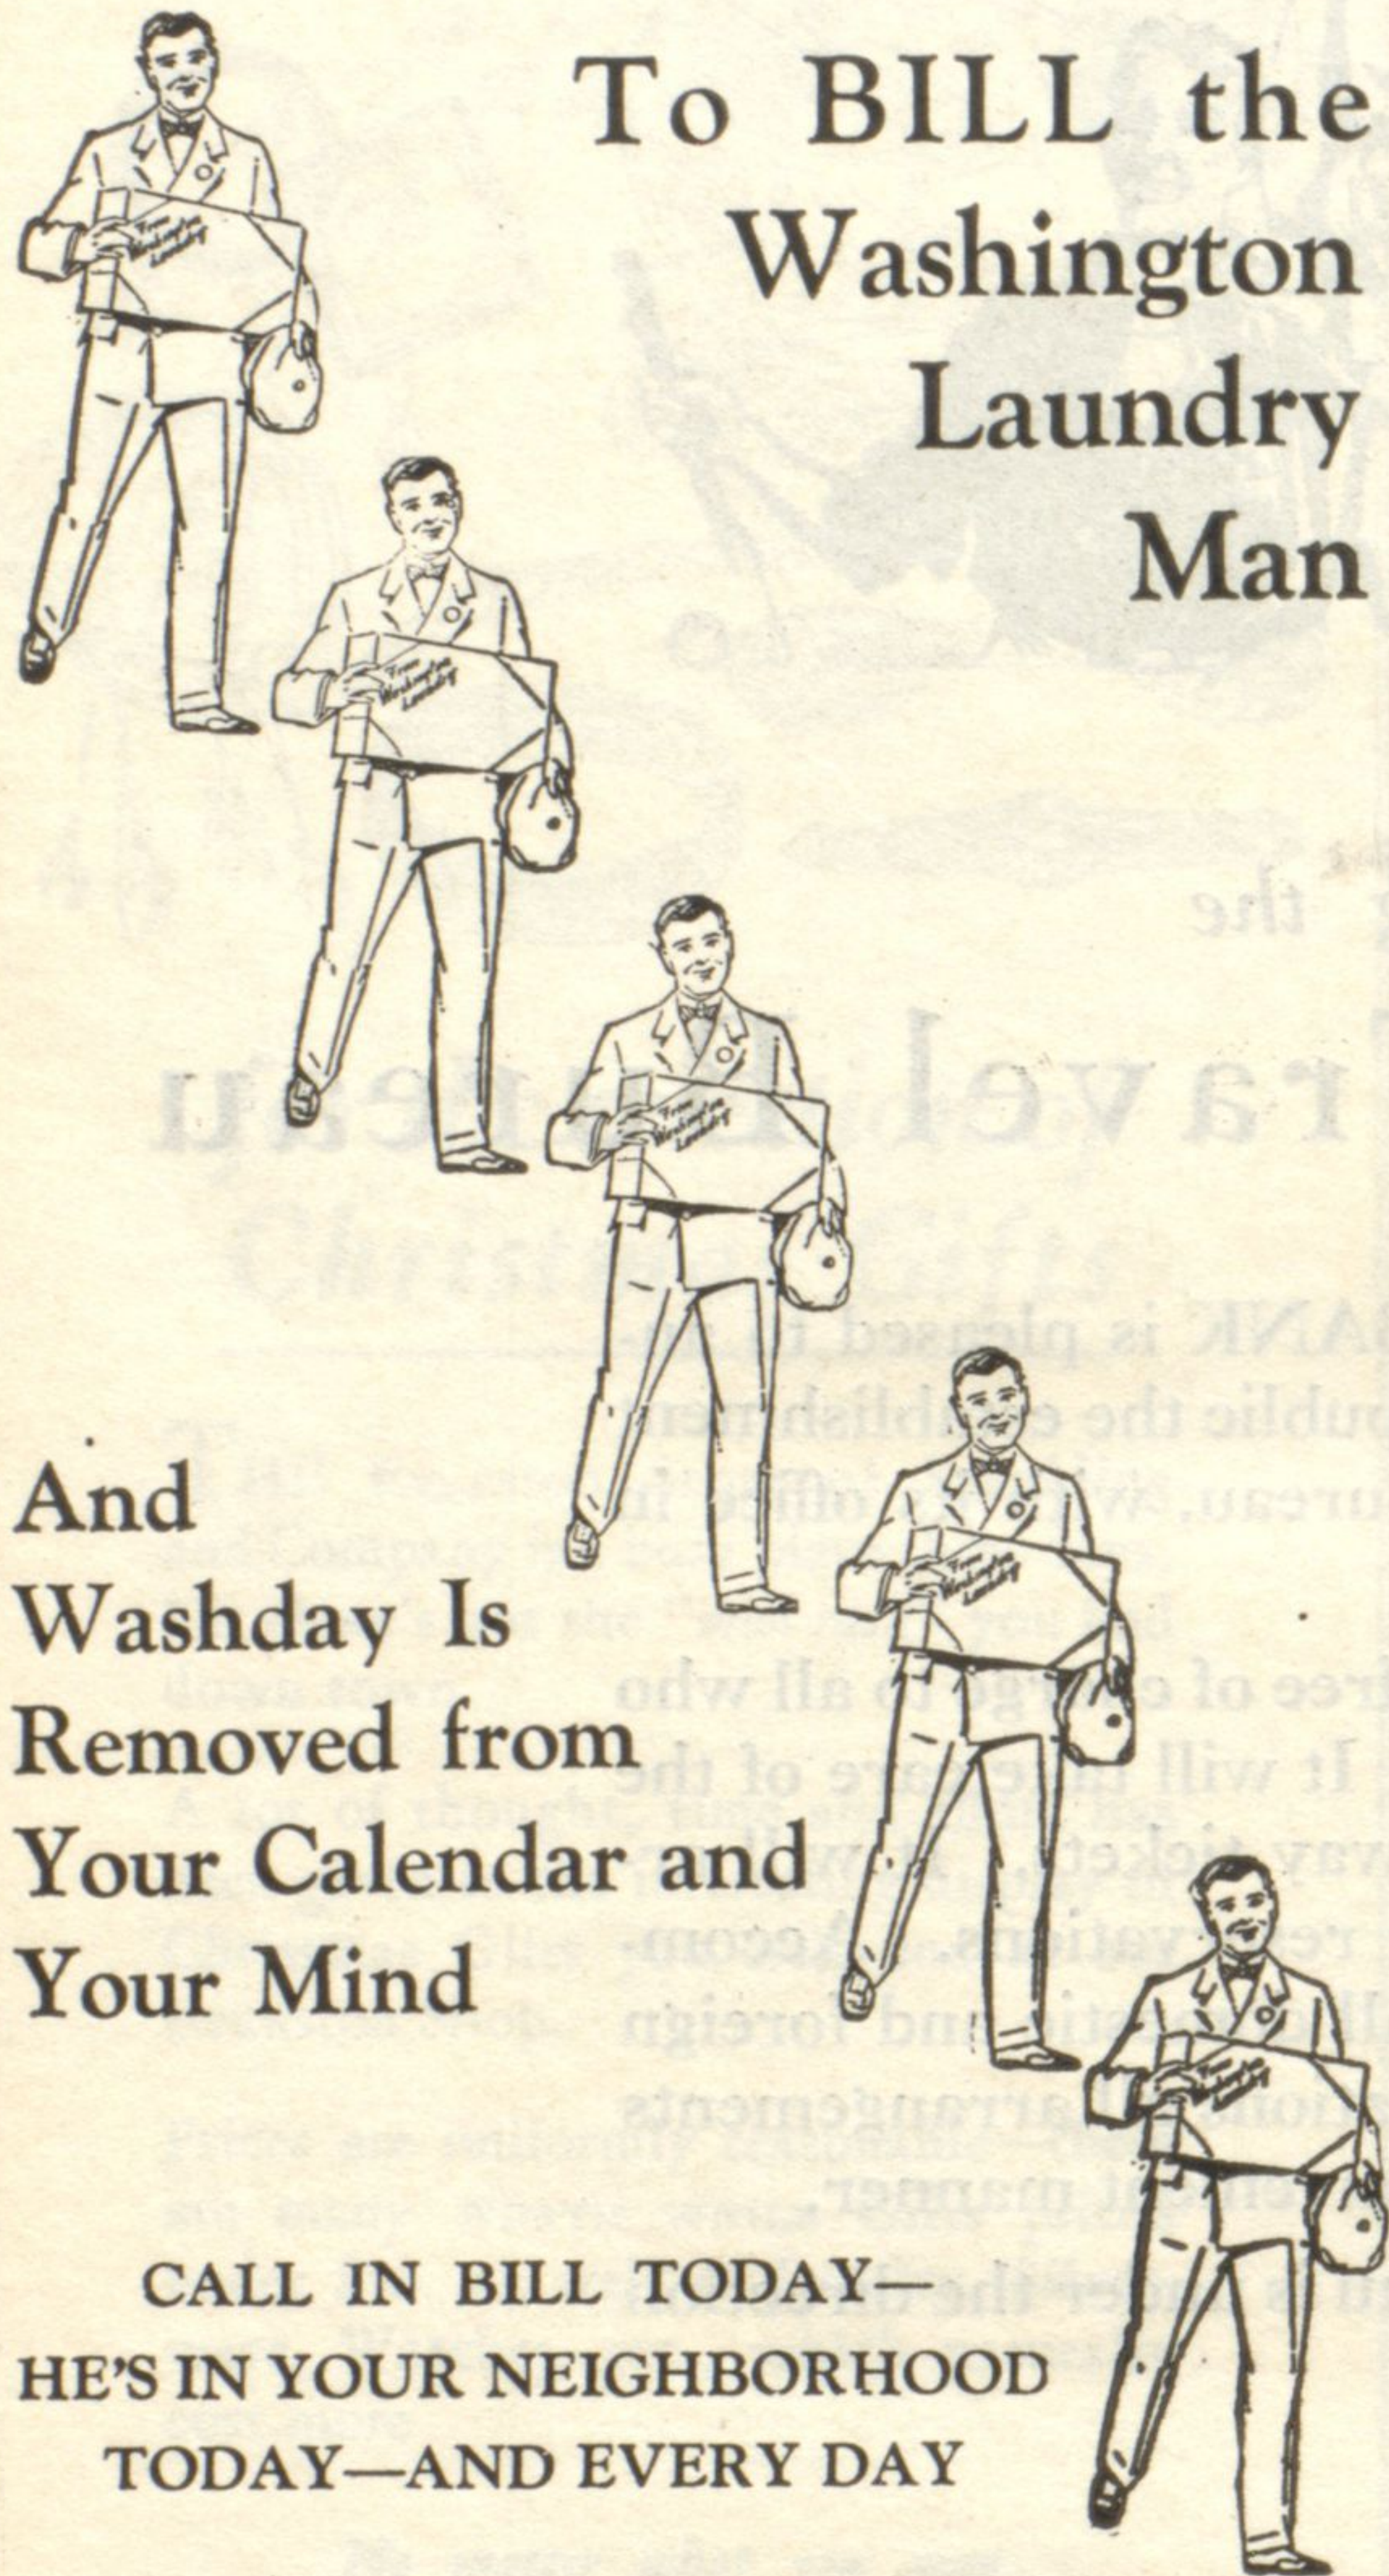

Eleven thousand nine hundred and thirteen families in which there were more than fifty thousand persons, mostly women and little children, were given help by the Family Service department of the United Charities of Chicago during the twelve months' period ending September 30, 1926, according to the annual service report of that organization mailed to its contributors this week.

Eighteen thousand four hundred and fifty-nine legal cases of men and women who through inability to pay regular attorney fees would have been deprived of justice, were handled free of charge by the Legal Aid bureau of the society, and $72,485 was collected by this bureau for its clients during the year, on claims for wages and miscellaneous debts due them, and which they otherwise might not have received.

Even more significant than these two outstanding items in the Service Report of this city-wide general charity, and indicative of the emphasis now placed on prevention rather than cure in modern social work, is the item stating that 9,505 of the 11,913 families appealing to the Family Service department of the society for help during the twelve months did not need material relief, but were kept from becoming dependent through their utilization of the services and resources placed at their disposal by the trained workers of the United Charities.

Mrs. James Parker of Los Gates, Cal., is the guest of Mrs. Ernest von Ammon, 568 Elm street. Mrs. W. W. Shoemaker of 45 Green Bay road entertained in honor of Mrs. Parker at a card party Thursday afternoon.
