In Concert November 15

This group of expert musicians, the Little Symphony orchestra of Chicago, will appear in the second concert of the current season at New Trier High school auditorium Monday evening, November 15, under auspices of the New Trier Orchestral association. The man at the conductor's stand is George Dasch, popular leader of the orchestra. The orchestra, comprising forty-five instruments, has been revamped by Mr. Dasch and presents many new artists who made their first appearance of the season before the association a month ago. Four solo artists will be heard with the Symphony next Monday.
