The Georgian at Davis Street and Hinman Avenue

QUIET REFINEMENT

To people of refinement home is far more than four walls and a ceiling. There must be correct color harmony in every room. Walls, rugs, furniture and furnishings must blend together so perfectly that appreciation of the composition of colors will augment with the passage of time.

Furniture must be more than useful, there must be elegance, but without lavish ornamentation. And the grouping so arranged that friendly association and good cheer are but natural reflections.

These effects have been achieved in Georgian suites, yet each is individual. It follows, naturally, that discerning people unquestionably choose The Georgian as their home.

Porter Warrington Heaps Wins Organists' Contest

Porter W. Heaps, 2135 Ridge avenue, Evanston, organist of the First Congregational church of Wilmette, was victorious in the national inter-state music students' contest, in the organ division, at Philadelphia last week. In capturing this honor, Mr. Heaps was given recognition, it is reported, as the foremost organist in the United States under the age of 24 years. Mr. Heaps, who is a pupil of Stanley Martin, in charge of the organ course at Northwestern university School of Music, recently won the preliminaries to the national contest, first in Illinois, and then in four middle western states. That assured him the chance to compete in the national meet at Philadelphia.

Mr. Heaps is now a senior at Northwestern Music school and also is president of the music school's student council. He is well known and liked on the Evanston campus and was formerly campus chapel organist.
