STUDENTS HEAR ABOUT LAWS OF IMMIGRATION

Expert of Immigrants' Protective League Also Talks of Aid for Newcomers

An interesting address on the subject of the immigration and naturalization laws of the United States, their content and effects—good and bad—was given by Mrs. Kenneth F. Rich, director of the Immigrants' Protective league, before the students of the National Kindergarten and Elementary college last Thursday.

Following the brief introduction to the personnel of the bureaus of immigration and naturalization of the Department of Labor, which have charge of the public administration of these laws, and to the local officers of the bureau, Mrs. Rich said that in spite of the mistaken idea of many people to the contrary, there are at present many immigrants coming into the country and many immigrant problems to be met. "A great many people feel that at present there is no immigration, but this is simply because they remember the time when immigrants came in by the millions and since the passing of the quota laws in 1921 this has decreased to between 290,000 and 706,000 a year.

"These immigrants came to America because of political and religious persecutions—the same reason that our own ancestors came, whether they happened to catch the Mayflower or some later boat," said Mrs. Rich. "And because of economic conditions they were received with open hands."

League Aids Immigrants

In telling of the origin and work of the Immigrants' Protective league, Mrs. Rich explained that "the locating of relatives and friends from the tattered, incomplete or illegible addresses carried by the immigrants is often very difficult and in the past many persons were ready to exploit the ignorance of the new arrival. Many communities failed to realize the necessity of protecting the immigrant upon his arrival in a new country, but Chicago did recognize this and established a center of distribution and the Immigrants' Protective league, through which an account is kept of persons who arrive and their destination, and when necessary an officer of the organization accompanies them to their destination.

"The process of immigration has become so involved with documents, passports and other papers," said Mrs. Rich, "that it is extremely difficult for an immigrant to comply with all the regulations, and the league assists many of them in solving their problems, in reuniting families, etc.

Cites Immigration Laws

Mrs. Rich told of a few of the many immigration laws which have been passed during the period since 1882, particularly of the law of 1917 which lists between twenty and thirty excluded classes of persons—idiots, vagrants, illiterates, etc.—who cannot be admitted to this country. "In 1921 the quota law established a limit to the number of persons who could be admitted to a certain percentage of the population of each country. In 1924 this percentage was placed at 2% and certain other quotas were established."

The form and formula of taking out first and second citizenship papers was explained and Mrs. Rich told of the complications, often serious, sometimes amusing, which have arisen through the many recent changes in boundaries and rulers in Europe, which are most confusing to the immigrant who frequently renounces allegiances to the wrong country or the wrong ruler.
