Threshold Players Are Busy Rehearsing Play

The Threshold Players of Glencoe are putting the final touches on the play, "The Judsons Entertain," which will be the first presentation since their organization. It is a clever, sparkling three act play, and will be presented in the new auditorium of the Glencoe Union church on Thursday and Friday evenings, December 9 and 10.

Those who wish to become associate members of the Threshold Players may communicate with the treasurer, Miss Helen Martin, (Glencoe 363). This membership will entitle them to attend the performance of the coming play, and that of another to be given within the year. For those who are neither active nor associate members, single admission tickets are being offered. Single admission and associate membership tickets are being handled by any member of the Threshold Players.

Mrs. Lyman Weld, 983 Vine street, and her sister entertained twenty-four friends at the College club, Chicago, on Tuesday, November 16, at luncheon and bridge.

'Standard' Bathroom Equipment Enriches the Entire Home

A fine bathroom, richly simple in fixtures, appointments and arrangements, offers far more than its cost in the satisfaction it gives.

Every modern home should have a bathroom like the one shown above. While this bathroom costs more than one with the tubs with legs, their years of assured service will long outlive the difference in the first cost.

JOURNALIST IS OUT

Second Issue of Skokie Magazine
Makes Its Appearance; Circulation
Takes Phenomenal Jump

"The Journalist," a news-magazine published by the printing class and other pupils of the Skokie school, made its second appearance of the year when the November number was issued last Wednesday. Its popularity among the Winnetka pupils is steadily increasing and it will be necessary to print more than a thousand copies on the net issue in order to take care of the general demand for the publication. This is an increase in circulation of about 200 copies and clearly demonstrates the manner in which it has been received.

The cover page of the November issue is especially noteworthy as it has been printed in two colors, orange and blue. The engraving is that of a turkey and represents a double run on the press. The entire paper has been printed in blue ink this month and a number of special cuts have been used which adds to the editorial neatness.

With the increasing demand for the paper the printing class is encountering difficulty because of the smallness of the school press. With the present equipment it is impossible to edit and print the paper in less than two weeks. With a larger press it would be possible to print four pages at a time instead of two which would also make it possible to run the paper off on the press in just half the time. Under those circumstances it would also be possible to print fresher news. Besides financing the paper themselves the editors are hoping to be able to put aside a small amount of money each year toward the price of new equipment. This attitude is especially commendable. Perhaps Santa Claus or friends of school activity will find a means of assisting "those who help themselves."

"King of Nomania" Play to Be Given by Pupils

"King of Nomania," a "medium sized play about a bootblack, a miser, the great cabachan emerald, belonging to the king, and Christmas," will be presented by the dramatic department of the Skokie school December 3 and 4. It was written by Percival Wilde especially for children and the scene is laid in a country that has been "taken by politicians from the 'shelf' in order to make geography harder." Hence it will be of especial interest to children and almost of equal interest to grown-ups. The curtain will rise promptly at 7:30 and the play will begin at once in order to make it possible for small children to attend. A large attendance is expected.
