Ethical Society Branch Is Planned for Evanston

Although it will be given some weeks before its organization, eventually Evanston and the north shore will have a branch of the Chicago Ethical society, if present plans carry.

This will be the outgrowth of the series of Sunday afternoon lectures which have been given recently by its Chicago leader, Horace J. Bridges, at the Orrington hotel. The last of the first series of these talks will be given next Sunday, but they will be resumed again the first Sunday in January, it is announced. Last Sunday Mr. Bridges discussed Dr. George Brandes' book, "Jesus, a Myth." Next Sunday he will discuss "Needed Repairs in the Ten Commandments."

All interested in the formation of this local society are asked to communicate with Mrs. Carl R. Latham, 1118 Sheridan road.

Italy and Russia Will Be Subject for Forum

"Dictatorship — Black and Red," a comparative report based on observations of conditions in Italy and Russia this summer, will be the subject for discussion at the Chicago Forum, Sunday, November 28. The speaker will be Kirby Page of New York, author of several important books on war, peace and international problems; editor of "The World Tomorrow," and known the country over for his wide range of information, brilliant studies, and power to present important facts in an interesting and forceful manner. The usual question period will follow the address.

The meeting will be held at the Erlanger theatre, Sunday afternoon at 3:15.

Playroom Feature of Dental Clinic for Chicago Tots

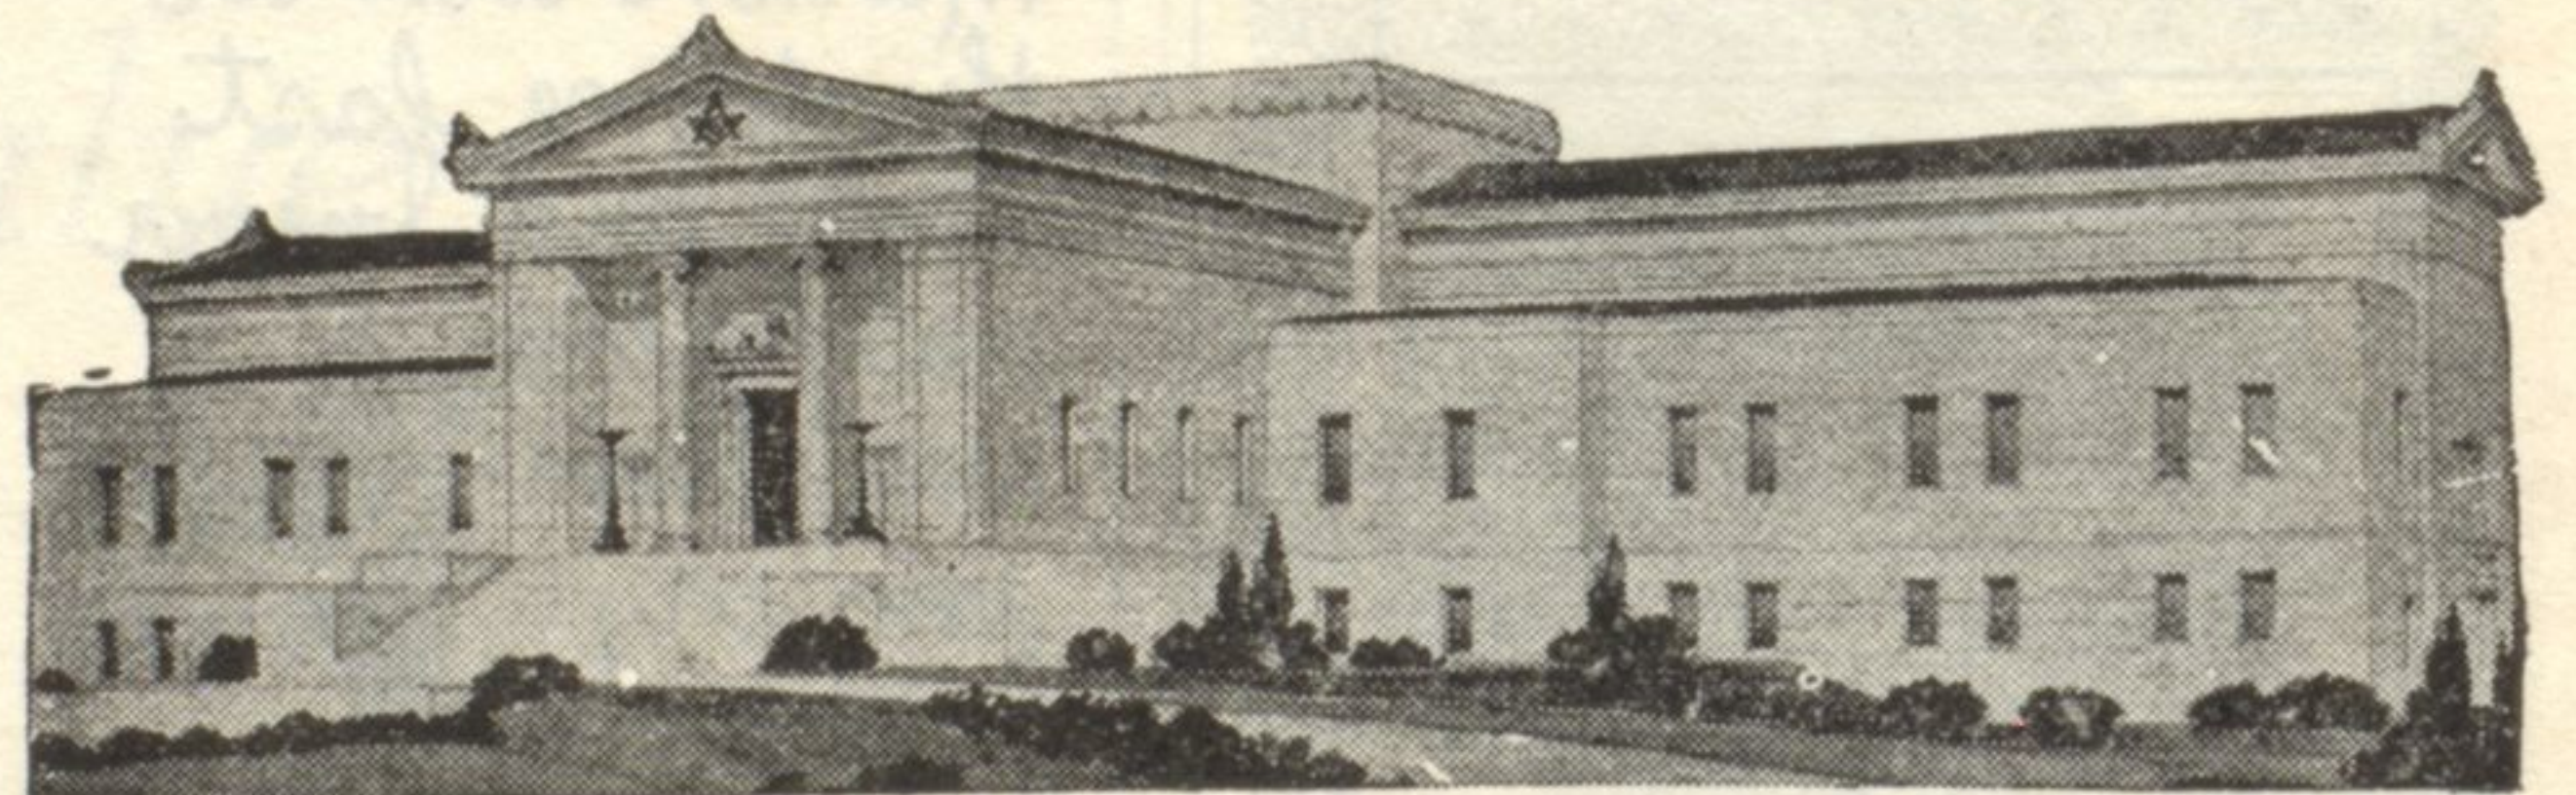

Children who are brought to the dental clinic in the Ward building on Northwestern university's McKinlock campus, within the near future, will first be ushered into one of the most attractive playrooms in the country. In the realm of dental psychology, if there is such a thing, it is deemed wise first to entertain the prospective victim before the tooth is pulled and at Northwestern, where there soon will be opened a children's dental clinic of twenty-six diminutive dental chairs, with all electrical and mechanical aids, every effort is to be made to divert the youngster's mind before he is called by the operator.

A feature of the playroom, which, with the perfected clinic, will be opened near Christmas time, will be the designer's plan to make the room resemble a miniature garden. There will be lattice-work and trellis effects, with a space that will resemble a tiny front-yard. As one dental authority at Northwestern said yesterday: "We want the kids to think they have arrived in an outdoor playroom and that they are expected to enjoy themselves."

Within the playroom will be slides, a sand pile, rocking horses, small chairs of various designs, picture books and blocks.

The clinic room itself is promised to be as complete as any adults' clinic in the country. The twenty-six wee dental chairs are already in position but the installation of related devices is still to be done.

Last year about 5,000 Chicago boys and girls were escorted by parents, school nurses, or other elders, to the old clinic at Lake and Dearborn streets, and this year it is believed that many more will be accommodated. It is expected that shortly better transportation facilities will be perfected so that bus service will be operating between campus and various depots and other important points of Chicago. The Illinois public utility commission was recently petitioned to this end.

Each a Combination of Quiet Dignity and Restful Charm.
