LITTLE SYMPHONY TO TOUR THROUGH SOUTH

New Trier Concert Season to Be Followed by Extensive Travel Engagements

The completion of the Little Symphony series of concerts for the New Trier Orchestral association next spring will find that musical body preparing for an extended tour of the south that will start in March and continue through April.

So far arrangements have been completed by Karl Schulte, manager of the orchestra, to hold concerts at New Orleans, La., Pensacola and Jackson, Fla.; Mobile, Ala.; Nashville, Tenn.; and several towns in West Virginia. Though the present membership of the orchestra approaches 50, only about 25 men will make the trip. All concerts will be under the direction of George Dasch.

In Fifth Year

This tour—the seventh of the Little Symphony since its inception in 1921—will climax Mr. Dasch's fifth year of work as leader and organizer of the orchestra, and of many more years of effort in the musical field.

He first studied as a violin player under Leandro Campanari at the Cincinnati College of Music, after his graduation he became a member of the faculty of that school, and later was associated for three years with the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra which was under the leadership of Frank van der Stucken.

Played With Thomas

In 1898 he joined the Theodore Thomas orchestra (now the Chicago Symphony orchestra) and in the following 23 years he became noted as a soloist, teacher, conductor and chamber music player. About 15 years ago he organized the Philharmonic String quartet with Messrs. Fritz Itte, Otto Roehrborn and Carl Brueckner.

The purpose of Mr. Dasch and Mr. Schulte in organizing the Little Symphony was to give greater attention to the presentation of orchestral music in the smaller concert halls and school auditoriums. All their New Trier programs, and every performance on their tours are based on this idea, and their work has been so successful that both Mr. Dasch and Mr. Schulte left the Chicago Symphony orchestra about a year ago and have devoted all their attention to the Little Symphony.
