Postmasters Confer on Christmas Mail Methods

A meeting of The Lake County and North Shore Postmasters' association was held at Evanston Wednesday, December 8. Preceding the business session twenty-five postmasters and their guests, consisting of the supervisory officials and clerks from various post offices enjoyed a dinner at the Hay Lofts. Talks were made by the president of the association, Joseph E. Shantz, Wilmette postmaster, and Postmaster William J. Hamilton of Evanston on the best methods of handling the Christmas mail, particularly the most efficient way to expedite deliveries during this holiday period, and at a minimum expense to the Department. The supervisors of the various departments at the Evanston post office gave the association the benefit of their long experience in postal work. Postmaster Hamilton had a unique exhibition consisting of preparations for the Christmas work.

Victor Carlson Opens Office in Chicago's Loop

A well known builder, who started in Chicago in 1906, then expanded and dotted the skyline of Evanston with several imposing structures, has just opened an office in Chicago's loop.

Victor C. Carlson has rented property at 65 East Randolph street, to be used for the realty and investment business of The Victor C. Carlson organization.

Chiefly known for his development of centrally located Evanston properties, Mr. Carlson has for some time been broadening his activities to include sections of Chicago proper. Builder and owner of The Orrington, The Library Plaza, and The Carlson buildings, as well as other properties in Evanston, Mr. Carlson also shares responsibility in the remarkable development of the north suburb.

While at this writing no announcements have been made, it is likely that news of new Carlson projects will follow the opening of his loop office. At present several sizable Evanston improvements are nearing completion.

At the Randolph street office an investment and realty service will be offered. Listings of buildings in the loop and throughout Chicago will be available. Securities on the Carlson projects will be handled both in the loop and at Evanston, it is stated.
