College Students Will Bring Toys to Xmas Festival

The Christmas festival of the National Kindergarten and Elementary college, to be held in Harrison hall, Friday afternoon, December 17, will be celebrated with the bringing of gifts by the students for needy children, and with the beautiful presentation of the cantata, "The Legend of the Dumb Boy."

Children in eight of the mission kindergartens of Chicago will be made happy this year with the gifts from the college students. Directors in these kindergartens are turning in lists, made out with the help of the children, giving the name of each child in the group and opposite it a toy he really wants for Christmas.

The students choose their child, purchase the toy and wrap it for him, tucking in a Christmas message, and the joy of the little children last Christmas when the plan was tried out for the first time, would well repay anyone for the extra trouble of seeing that Mary, who longs for a train of cars, isn't made unhappy through the gift of the conventional doll.

Following the processional, in which each student will bring her gift and lay it at the foot of the Christmas trees, the Christmas cantata will be presented under the direction of Miss Louise St. John Westervelt, director of chorus at the college, and Miss Etta Mount.

The rough stable, crude manger—Mary, her face illumined as she bends over the wondrous joy cradled in the straw, Joseph, and little St. John are visited by the wondering shepherds and worshipping magi. And then, in deepest awe, children of Judea come peering to see the cause of the wondrous light and music, and among them is a little dumb boy. As the other children gaze in wonder, he touches the manger of the sleeping Child, and the cantata closes with the piercing sweetness of his song of Thanksgiving for the miracle which has given him his voice.

The festival will close with the singing of Christmas carols, and the candle light recessional of the choir. The students are leaving on Friday afternoon for their homes, returning to the college on the Monday following New Year's.

Track Prospects Good at New Trier This Year

According to Coach Noy prospects look good for a successful year in track at New Trier High school.

When asked who were the senior prospects he said, "Paige, Mills, Boas, Leach, McNeal, Forth, Wanger, Cliff, Drake, Older, and Bartholomew look like our best so far." These men will cover long distance sprints, high and broad jumps, high and low hurdles, and shot put. This is a good start but middle distance runners and pole vaulters are badly needed, as well as more men in all the other events, he stated.
