Sell Season Tickets for Northwestern Cage Games

Unprecedented demands for tickets to Northwestern university basketball games this season has caused the athletic department to adopt a system of season ticket books for the home games. These tickets, which will be sold for $10 apiece, will be good for seven games beginning with the Notre Dame game January 3.

A system of season ticket books for basketball is a new venture and one which is not used by other schools in the conference. However, the great demand for tickets at Northwestern during the last two years has led athletic officials to adopt the plan in order that the regular patrons will be assured a seat at the games. It also makes possible a saving on each game.

Purchasers of season tickets will have the same reserved seat at all games played in Evanston beginning with the Notre Dame game. Those who buy their tickets before the Drake game on December 18 will also receive tickets for that contest and the one with Michigan state on December 20.

Northwestern's home basketball schedule this season is one of the most attractive presented in years. Wabash opens the schedule on December 11 and will bring to Evanston one of the strongest fives in Indiana. Then comes Drake on December 18 with a powerful team. These visitors will be followed by Michigan state, December 20; Notre Dame, January 3; Illinois, January 8; Chicago, January 12; Wisconsin, January 15; Indiana, January 17; Minnesota, February 26 and Purdue, March 7.
