of Christmas Cheer

THE day of wishing "Merry Christmas" with perishable beads and baubles has passed. No longer does one give from a sense of duty, but from a feeling of deep regard. The outcome of this desire is to give something both lovely and lasting. A comfortable chair for the fireside. A desk for the home. A gay painted book shelf for a "very own" room and very own books. A table lamp to add just that bit of warmth and color to a cheerless room. A mirror to play toss-and-catch with sunbeams on a somber wall. The occasional table that would make tea just twice as cozy and confidential! These are but few of the gift possibilities of Furniture at Christmas-time!

UNTIL CHRISTMAS
