

Mrs. F. A. Helmar,
Former Resident,
Dies in Michigan

Word has been received by Winnetka friends, of the death of Mrs. Frank A. Helmar of Battle Creek, Mich., formerly of Chicago and Winnetka, which occurred this week, in Battle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Helmar lived in Winnetka for several years, having bought the home of Mrs. Ralph Dickinson on Prospect avenue. Shortly after this time their only daughter married Dr. Stewart Prichard, head dietician of the Battle Creek sanitarium. Leaving Winnetka, Mr. and Mrs. Helmar made their home with their daughter, where Mr. Helmar died. Since that time Mrs. Helmar lived with her daughter until her death.

In addition to having a wide circle of friends along the north shore, and being prominent in social affairs, Mrs. Helmar, a graduate of Northwestern university was distinguished for being the first woman lawyer in Chicago. Her father and husband were also prominent in law work, and were well-known in the legal world.

Her father, Judge James B. Bradwell, a pioneer in Chicago, was the founder of the "Chicago Legal News," a paper taken and read by nearly every lawyer and judge in the city, for it dealt with the legal news of the day. He was also a publisher of legal forms used by lawyers, courts, and judicial bodies. Together they edited and revised Hurd's Statutes of Illinois. Mr. Helmar was associated with one of the oldest law firms in Chicago.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. James Austin Richards at Rosehill, Thursday, January 13. Mrs. Asa B. Cooley of Winnetka, sang appropriate selections.
