Writing Room for Women Is Finished in Blue, Lavender

One of the smaller rooms of the hotel is the ladies' writing room which is to the east of the main entrance and looks out over Davis street through a window extending the length of the room. Light and delicately furnished it affords a quiet atmosphere for writing or resting.

Its French style is effected largely through the color scheme—a combination of blue, lavender, yellow and ivory.

Use of these colors in the furniture is set off against the wall background, English walnut paneling, and the deep taupe-lavender of the carpet.

Small writing tables, painted blue with lavender trimmings, are arranged to face the walls and have mirrors hanging above them.

The several resting chairs in the room are hand-painted. The ivory of their frames is decorated with delicate rose patterns. The bodies of the chairs are wicker and the seats, flower-striped chintz. In the middle of the room is a chaise lounge upholstered in lavender velour.

Georgian's Roof Garden Will Be Summer Haven

The roof garden of the Georgian hotel is expected to prove one of the most popular spots on the north shore during the warm summer nights when the mercury is hovering around the top of the thermometer. The garden extends over the entire roof of the east wing and opens from the spacious ballroom.

Bright colored canopies over tables and swings, gay cretonne coverings on cushions and chair backs, together with novel lighting effects will make the roof garden a pleasing place to dance and rest during the summer evenings.

COMPLETE SERVICE IN SUITES

Service for any and every detail of the care of a suite is furnished by the management of the Georgian hotel for its patrons. Such things are done for the guests as making beds and changing bed linens, laundering bed linens, cleaning drapes, bedspreads, vacuuming rugs, washing windows, dusting and polishing woodwork, cleaning and scouring bathrooms, giving maid service for luncheons and dinners, if desired.
