

EXPOUND CAMP FIRE

Winnetka Groups to Give Novel Program Before Assembly at Skokie School Tuesday, February 1

The six active Camp Fire groups in Winnetka will present an unusual program before the assembly of the Skokie school, Tuesday, February 1, illustrating in original sketches, just what Camp Fire means. Each group either wrote or helped to write the sketches with the help of the guardians.

Those taking part in the program will be Miss Virginia Ogan's group, Otyokwa, giving a pageant depicting the seven points of the Camp Fire law.

Miss Mildred Olson's group, Akiuyhati, will give a bandaging exhibition, based on many hours of practice. Every Camp Fire girl must be proficient in first aid work, her ability being appraised by an authorized physician.

Mrs. George Eisenbrand's group Wakamtahi, will entertain and instruct with a knot-tying contest, to test the speed and agility of her group, and illustrate the value of knowing how to tie certain standard knots.

Mrs. John Marshall, and Mrs. Guilford R. Windes, who have charge of the Untaluti girls are staging an original play, written in rhyme. Members of the group will take part in the play, which will be given entirely in pantomime, the reading of the play to be done by Mrs. Marshall.

Miss Amy Macintyre, guardian of Woussicket, is preparing with her girls a pageant on "What a Girl Finds in Camp Fire," and will include the laws, crafts and songs.

Mrs. Phillip Fischer and Mrs. J. M. Winscott head the Litahni group who are singing in rhyme, the meaning of the seven crafts of the organization. The girls will be in costume.
