HISTORICAL MOVIES
COME TO NEW TRIER

Famous "Chronicles of America Photoplays," to be Viewed by Students, Parents

No patriotic or educational project of recent years has made a more profound impression than the work of the Yale University Press in producing the series of authentic and inspiring historical motion pictures entitled "The Chronicles of American Photoplays." These films are to be shown at New Trier High school this spring.

In these remarkable films, events of outstanding importance in the annals of America are re-created with vividness and fidelity in every detail. Fifteen pictures have been completed, beginning with "Columbus" and ending with "Dixie," the latter subject culminating with the meeting of Lee and Grant at Appomattox. Never before in motion picture history have any historical motion pictures been produced under such auspices or with such scrupulous care and untiring effort for absolute accuracy in every detail, it is said.

The result has been to make the Chronicles of American Photoplays, like the volumes of the same name on which they are based, at once a new and most effective apparatus to assist in the better teaching of American history in the schools, and a powerful instrument for the stimulation of patriotism and good citizenship.

Clerk Secures Films

The fifteen completed photoplays in this series are to be presented at New Trier for the instruction and inspiration of the students. Arrangements for their use have been made whereby certain of the films may be seen by adults of the community. The details of the showings have been completed by Superintendent Frederick F. E. Clerk, with the Yale University Press, who will announce a definite schedule of subjects and dates shortly.

This co-operation on the part of the Yale University Press Film Service with the educational work of the high school authorities is made possible, it has been announced, as the result of a gift made to Yale University Press in memory of Captain Oliver Baty Cunningham, 15th United States Field Artillery, who was born in Chicago, September 17, 1894, and was graduated from Yale college in the class of 1917. As an undergraduate, he was distinguished alike for high scholarship and proved capacity for leadership among his fellows, as evidenced by his selection as Gordon Brown prize man for his class. He received his commission as Second Lieutenant, United States Field Artillery, at the First Officers Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, and, in December, 1917, was detailed abroad for service, receiving subsequently the Distinguished Service medal. He was killed while on active duty near Thiaucourt, France, on September 17, 1918, the twenty-fourth anniversary of his birth.

Traffic Looms as One of the Biggest Factors in Life

By J. G. Barber

North Shore Representative of Velie, Moon and Diana. Secretary of the Evanston Safety Council.

The term "Traffic," although seen in print very often and discussed by certain groups nearly every day, is little thought of by the average citizen of today notwithstanding the fact that "Traffic" has perhaps more to do with every person's daily life than anything else except food and sleep.

It was only a few years ago that we had the great convenience of horse cars, horses and carriages and bicycles for our transportation. Every one was happy and the wheels of industry turned as well then as today. No one was in such a mad rush that the world found transportation conditions such as to require earnest consideration of expert minds trained in "Traffic."

As time wore on people desired to make more out of their time and as a result the first thing that had to be mastered was transportation. This gave us the cable cars, electric cars, elevated lines, one-cylinder motor cars and motor bicycles, and evolution has gone on until today we have electric cars and elevated and steam trains of course, but many times faster than a few years ago because people are still continuing to force more into their daily lives. The automobile has without a question come to be the most important means of transportation, not only for those who are in a mad rush from morning to night, but also for those of leisure. Today finds motor cars of four, six, eight, twelve and in some cases sixteen cylinders capable of making better than 100 miles per hour. These vehicles range in price from the used car at $25 to the large flashy cars at $20,000 each.

At this time it is possible for every man and child to have an automobile, and to the traffic engineer it looks very often as though they all had. If all these cars were in good mechanical condition and operated with a due regard for traffic, life would be a lot more pleasant. As it is you have the fellow with a faulty car that ties up traffic with a break down or causes an accident, and there is our old friend the road hog, the drunken driver and the race track hound who goes 50 per to get there, and on arrival at destination wastes the time he saved if he was lucky in not being arrested or ditched.

At this time of the year when the auto shows are in session it would be well for the person who is contemplating getting a new car to look twice before jumping. Due to price competition essential parts and strength have been taken out of some cars, which means that at the critical moment they will not perform properly.

Robert Hallquist, son of Mrs. L. Hallquist of 809 Oak street, entertained eleven of his friends at an afternoon party, Monday, January 24, at 3:30 o'clock. The occasion was the celebration of his eleventh birthday.

Mrs. F. L. Wilcox of Walker, Minn., left Kenilworth last week after spending ten days as the guest of Mrs. Charles D. Howe, 246 Kenilworth avenue.
