A Review

"The Importance of Being Earnest"
By Critic

Perhaps the first thing to be noted in a review of "The Importance of Being Earnest" were the stage sets. Each one was noteworthy; and the second, showing the garden scene and the adjoining house was a triumph of skill. Certainly Mrs. Louis Sherman and her able helper, Robert Johnson, together with Charles T. Moon, Sherman Goble, John W. Smart and others, showed almost professional ability, and transformed the simple materials at hand into beautiful settings.

The play was also exceptionally well cast. The women, Mrs. Charles T. Moon, Miss Helen Davis and Miss Mary Harding were clever and "good to look at," and made their lines "carry."

Mrs. Taliaferro Milton did the best bit of work of all her many good parts. It would have been so easy and so fatal to have burlesqued the part of Miss Prism.

It is gratifying indeed to see the list of men growing. The Community Drama club has contributed to its other good work the introduction of Lawrence Norhem, George Bartlett and Henry Hoehn. Mr. Norhem maintained the ability he showed in the Christmas play and Mr. Bartlett was his able and witty co-adjutor.

Eugene Rummel is a welcome addition whenever he plays and also Donald Cameron.

Mrs. Karnopp gave the audience some little inkling of the number of people who helped make this play possible, whose names never appear in print, thanking especially the Winnetka Coal and Lumber company, Miss Grace Herbst and Mr. Magnus Martin. More sustaining members are hoped for before the year ends, and the audience was reminded of the coming play.

"The Famous Mrs. Fair," is to be given March 9 and 10, directed by Mrs. Lloyd Faxon and Mrs. Taliaferro Milton, with a cast of well-known players.
