Perry Dunlap Smith, headmaster of the North Shore Country Day school, attended the meeting of the Headmaster's association at Cambridge, Mass., February 11 and 12. This is an organization of the headmasters of public and private schools throughout the country, its membership being limited to one hundred active members.

Seniors at Harvard gave up rooms in Massachusetts hall for the delegates and the meetings were held in the faculty room at Harvard.

While on his trip east, Mr. Smith visited the Shady Hill school. He spent a day each at Harvard, Yale and Vassar, visiting the graduates of the North Shore Country Day school who are now attending those colleges.

The program at the Headmasters' meeting included discussions on the intelligence tests as used for admission to college. These were by Prof. Brigham, of Princeton, who is in charge of the subject for college board examinations, and by the President of Connecticut College of Women.

Dean Briggs spoke on the life of President Elliott.

Problems of what to do with the boy who does not get into college, and music as an entrance unit for college, were discussed by Prof. Lewis, of Tufts college; Mr. Baldwin, of the Hartford public schools and Eugene Rando'phi Smith.

Morton Snyder, secretary of the progressive educational association, summarized the work of the progressives during the past ten years.

At the dinner at the Harvard club, in Boston, Dr. Davidson spoke on the development of the Glee club at Harvard college, and President Lowell, of Harvard, spoke on "The need of keeping the end in view when we become involved in methods."

Committee Is Named for Advancement of Education

Perry Dunlap Smith, headmaster of North Shore Country Day school attended a meeting in New York, recently, the object of which was to endeavor to secure a degree of uniformity in entrance regulations in colleges, and to lessen objections raised by schools to these regulations.

Mr. Smith was asked to be on a committee to study these regulations. This committee has been appointed by the Carnegie Foundation, for the advancement of education. Mr. Smith was appointed as a member on the committee to represent schools west of the Appalachians.

On the committee are Dean Pennybacker, of Harvard; Prof. Corwin, of Yale; Prof. Brigham, of Princeton; Prof. Jones, of Columbia; Prof. McLellan of the University of Pennsylvania and heads of other schools in the east.

Mr. Smith while in New York, visited the Brooklyn Polytechnic Preparatory Country Day School for Boys. The length of the name of this school, as compared with the North Shore Country Day school, Mr. Smith feels makes the latter a very short name.
