

Indian Hill Tuning Up Fiddle for Next I. H. I. A. Meeting

There will be a little business to transact at the next meeting of the Indian Hill Improvement association, but the greater part of the time, on Monday evening, March 7, when the association next convenes, will be devoted to just "having a good time."

And, "Oh, what a meeting we are going to have," precedes an exclamation point in Secretary William S. Nordburg's announcement that the Indian Hill Improvement association is back on schedule and announcing the next meeting for March 7.

He further states:

"Russell Pratt, the 'Topsy Turvy Time' man of station WMAQ, and Ransom Sherman will be with us in person, to entertain us with many melodies for which they are famous," and "we are indebted to Walter Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News for this treat."

The entertainment will be followed by a good old fashioned dance—a grand march, Virginia reel, grand-right-and-left, waltz, two-step, and anything else in the terpsichorean category that one's heart may desire, secretary Nordburg, says.

"Really, what we want," he continues, "is a genuine get-together meeting. We want everyone to meet everyone else. We are especially anxious to have our new residents come. Guests, too, will be welcome, in fact are urged to attend. Our young men and young women will find more fun here than they have had for a long time."

The business part of the session will include a short talk by Merritt Lum, on the coming Village caucus.

Refreshments, that always help to put real flavor in any party, will be given special attention.

SLIGHT INCREASE

There are 46 cases of whooping cough in the village, a very slight increase over the number reported last week, according to Dr. H. A. Orvis, health officer. There are five cases of measles and three of scarlet fever.
