"Yes, this is Faith's portion—to seize upon the music of the whirlwind, in a sinking waterlogged boat, with a sleeping Christ; and to hear the one voice of certitude as to safety! Faith has to learn the logic of the Holy Ghost, which says: "He sleeps," therefore all is well. To sum it all up, this is the lesson they have been set to learn—All ill is well; all bad is good; and the very worst is the very best!"
(From last Sunday's sermon, "With Jesus in the Storm.")

Local Men Offer Summer Camp for Boys in Montana

A unique summer camp for boys, to be operated on a program of individual attention, has been opened at Holland Lake, located at the foot of Swan ridge of the Mission range in Montana. The camp is locally under the direction of Lawrence H. Yingling and Wayne L. Claxton of the Skokie school, Winnetka, and Robert W. Yingling of Geneva, Illinois. The Montana representative is Walter L. Conway, author of the Montana nature study course and one of the best informed men today on the country in the northwest part of Montana. The program of the camp is also under the advisement of S. R. Logan, assistant superintendent of Winnetka schools, who knows both the boys in this vicinity and the camp in Montana. Special attention is to be paid in the formulation of the camp program to develop personality, especially with respect to initiative and self-reliance.

Camp Glacier, as it is known, is located on the same ridge as the two national parks, Glacier and Yellowstone, and is between them. The locality is in its native form, virgin timber stretching in a complete circle around the lake which extends up the canyon to the very foot of Swan ridge, rising some 6000 feet above the water's surface. Glacial water, reaching to the lake by a sheer fall of two hundred feet, feeds into the lake at its head. A shallow and smooth beach is provided by nature for swimming and the best of fishing is obtainable, it is said. Excellent opportunities are offered for hiking and horseback riding and from Gordon Pass, a short hike away, eleven glaciers can be seen, some of which are as large as nine miles in width. The camp will be held for eight weeks and will include a week's stay in Glacier National Park, one of America's most famous beauty spots.

The camp's location was chosen, according to its directors, because of its untouched and uncommercialized appearance. Only space large enough for the camp buildings and tents has been cut away. The personnel is experienced in the administration of camps and schools and are prepared to offer invigorating and inspirational companionship.

Cornelia Otis Skinner to Read at Skokie March 22

Cornelia Otis Skinner, one of the most prominent of present-day readers and the daughter of the great actor, Otis Skinner, will present a number of her own character sketches at a benefit performance given under the auspices of the Bryn Mawr Regional scholarships committee, at the Skokie school Tuesday evening, March 22. Miss Skinner is an outstanding writer as well as a reader, having produced the play "Captain Fury" and articles for a number of leading magazines. In her little dramas, produced without the aid of either costuming or stage sets, Miss Skinner makes her characters live. One moment she is in Paris after the War; again in snow-bound Iowa or sunny, warm-wind swept Barbados. Depending entirely upon the imagination of her audience for aid, she is said to produce her characters in such a way that she never fails to completely win her audience.
