

WINNETKA BOYS ENJOY BOXING INSTRUCTION

Harry Gilmore, Jr., Interests Group of Youngsters in Art of Self-Defense

Boxing is being adopted as the ideal training, both physical and moral, for the youth of today. This is shown by the interest displayed in the many classes conducted by Harry Gilmore, Jr., throughout Chicago and its vicinity.

"There is no better exercise than boxing," says Mr. Gilmore. "It is a character builder for the boy. It cultivates grace, activity, acuteness of judgment and is particularly effective in developing courage and determination. It teaches self reliance and the confidence it inspires helps the boy keep out of trouble rather than get into it."

Right here in Winnetka Mr. Gilmore has a class of ten boys, ranging from 9 to 13 years old, engaging in the manly art. They include Hilton Scribner, Boysie Bartholomay, Bobby Henkel, Jackie Metcalf, James Stanton, Bobby Coffin, John Elliott, John Reilly, Dunham Reilly and Henry Stanton, Jr. Instruction is held at the residence of Henry T. Stanton at 698 Blackthorne road, where a spacious squash racquet court is turned over to the boys on Saturday mornings.

Mr. Gilmore is considered one of the cleverest boxers in the country and a most able instructor. He is the son of the former lightweight champion, who is now retired in Los Angeles, Cal., at the age of 73 years. Harry Jr., is making a specialty of the training of the younger generation and has a distinguished class of boys at the Racquet club in Chicago, another at Hinsdale and is now organizing classes at Kenilworth and Highland Park. Saturday afternoon Gilmore will be at the Community club gym, where it is proposed to organize another class in boxing and physical training, which engages athletic play games.
