

Clubs Play Big Role in Society as Spring Advances

Bazaar at Horace Mann School Will Be Held Wednesday

By JEAN TEN BROECK

Sales and benefits of all kinds are advance agents of Easter and the late spring season that follows. A bazaar that has been the cause of widespread activity and interest is that to take place at the Horace Mann school Wednesday, April 6, from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 6 in the evening.

The boys and girls of the Horace Mann school have found that working with them have been even friends from other school districts as well as their own fathers and mothers and teachers. As a result there is a wide range of really clever and beautiful articles for each member of the family and every room in the house. Some are on display now in the windows of the Adams' pharmacy, Taylor's Hardware store and the McGuire and Orr Real estate office. There are others, however, from tall book cases to little gleaming pewter ash trays, a wide selection at very low prices.

The booths for selling these handicrafts and those for homemade foods and candies will be in the gymnasium, where in addition, will be a circus grab-bag and a wigwam grab. An Indian reservation, a Dutch Chocolate shop and a hot dog and coffee stand will be found on the first floor. On the reservation Indians in costume will display relics and an old squaw in a tepee will tell fortunes.

In the Chocolate shop children in Dutch costumes will serve food and will dance. They will show patrons the tiled fireplace and the curtained wall bed.

At 4 o'clock in the Assembly room on the first floor, Miss Krenwinkle's room will give a play, "Jason and the Golden Fleece," which the children have written themselves. They have been studying the ancient Greeks this year and have been living their roles for weeks. At 2 and at 5 o'clock, before and after the play, a moving picture will be shown in the Assembly hall.

"Come early for there is much to see and do and buy," the committee asks.

Those who make up this group directing the bazaar are Mrs. Hubert Howard, chairman; Mrs. E. R. Parker, chairman of the Horace Mann Parent-Teacher association, co-chairman; and Mrs. William Elliott, Mrs. Charles H. Coffin, Mrs. Samuel Greeley, Mrs. S. S. Beman, Mrs. J. Edgar Freeman, Mrs. A. J. Mitchell, Mrs. Edwin Keeler and Mrs. Elbert Clark.
