 "Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal. Jesus Christ is the Great Physician. He is our Balm in Gilead. He heals sin-sick souls. Strange are the ways of sin in the human heart, but glorious is the Divine healing power for body, soul and spirit."

 (from last Sunday's sermon: "The Balm of Gilead.")

A SCOUT'S GOOD TURN

Bishop Kelley of Oklahoma Tells Story of Wilmette Youth Who Won Him Over to Boy Scout Cause

EDITOR'S NOTE: Scout Executive Walter McPeck, North Shore Area council, Boy Scouts of America, passes along the following story told at a Scout Executives' conference last September, by the Rt. Rev. Francis C. Kelley, bishop of the Catholic church in Oklahoma, and formerly pastor of the St. Francis Xavier church in Wilmette. The tale relates to an incident which occurred to Bishop Kelley when he came to Wilmette as a stranger some sixteen years ago.

"I met my first Boy Scout in the village of Wilmette, near Chicago, about sixteen years ago, that is, the first Boy Scout who made an impression on me. I had just gotten off an interurban car at a corner and was looking about for a church steeple which, I hoped, would be my guide to find the Catholic Rectory where I was to be a guest. I saw no steeple. There seemed to be nobody about on that particular street from whom to make inquiries. I started to walk rather aimlessly away from the car line hoping to meet some one who would send me in the right direction. I had a suitcase also to bother me and there was no hope for a taxi. Those were not the days of taxis wandering about in hordes.

"Suddenly a boy rushed out from somebody's front lawn. I turned and saw other boys there at play. This one had left them and now came up to me smiling.

"Do you want to find Father Byrne's house, Father?" he asked.

"You guessed it right, son."
 "Let me take you there." You're going the wrong way.

"No, son. I don't want to break up your party, and your game. Just tell me the way and I'll find the house all right."

"No, no, Father. Let me show you. It's not a bit of trouble."

"He started me off the other way and walked along with me. All at once he seemed to think of something he had missed.

"Say, Father, let me carry your suitcase."

"Now he was a small boy and the case was heavy, so I objected; but the discussion enlivened our walk to the rectory where the boy left me with a cheery, 'Good-bye, Father.'

"When I met Father Byrne, I said: 'You must have the right kind of teachers in your school,' — and I told him about the boy. He laughed.

"I certainly have the right kind of teachers, but they can't find credit for that particular boy. I saw who he was when he left you at the door. He is not one of the Parochial school. He is not even a Catholic."

"But he called me Father and seemed—"

"Of course he did. He gave you your proper title, and he has to be kind and courteous. He is a Boy Scout who was using your trouble to do his daily good turn for someone."

"Since that time I have always tried to do a good turn for the Scouts by saying a word for them when opportunity offered. Brother Barnabas thinks that Mr. Wyland, Bishop Conroy, and himself brought me here today. Brother Barabas is mistaken. It was that Boy Scout from the village of Wilmette who brought me. He is now a grownup who perhaps is helping to make other boys kind and courteous through the lessons underlying the Scout law. I hope he hears of this story."
