

Grid Frenzy Seizes Town at Springtime Game in Wildcat Den

The popular game of football got a jump on the seasons last Saturday afternoon when 5,000 dyed-in-the-wool fans attended an exhibition game between two Northwestern elevens at Dyche stadium. It was an ideal football day despite the fact that it was staged six months ahead of the regular season.

Coach Dick Hanley has been working with the football candidates during the last month and Saturday's game was held to get a line on just how the boys were picking up his system of play. The teams were called the Purple and the Green, the former being more or less composed of last year's regulars and the more promising of the freshmen. The determined defense of the Greens, which were coached by Pat Hanley, Dick's brother, held the regulars to a 7 to 0 score.

Some of the changes introduced by Coach Hanley were readily observed by the fans. Among these was the shifting of "Yatz" Levison from half back to quarterback. The way the Evanston boy barked out his signals showed that he could do something besides act as interference. The Purple eleven did not use the huddle but called signals from a regular scrimmage formation.

Neither team attempted the lateral or backward pass seriously. It was used several times for small gains but did not prove to be of much aid to the offense. Coach Hanley does not favor the new play and will probably not develop it to any extent.

See Reverse Play as Weapon

Considerable use was made of the reverse play by both teams. It usually worked successfully and will probably be a strong offensive weapon of the Purple next fall. The question of whether field goals after touchdown would be harder to make with the goal posts ten yards back was answered by Holmer who booted a goal from place following the touchdown.

A number of familiar players were in the Purple lineup. Among these were Fisher, Ruddy Schuler, Hazen, Rosie, Levison, Ritchie, and Holmer. All these boys helped bring the championship to Northwestern last fall. Some promising newcomers were observed in Kent, Bergherm, Colderwood, Haas, Kotchevor, Sinkler, Anderson, Penza, Rojan, F. Hall, Graske and Mundy.

Miss Lorraine Thoms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Thoms of 863 Lincoln avenue, left Tuesday after a week's vacation from the University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Ryland A. Wolcott of 932 Euclid avenue and her father, J. C. Craft, and her children, Nancy, Jean, and Katrina, returned Monday from Tryon, N. C., where they had spent seven weeks.

You Can Be in Two Places!

IT is often said that a person cannot be in two places at the same time.

Literally, this is true. To all purposes, however, business men, confronted with the necessity of being in two or several places at the same time, will find the long distance telephone a good proxy. If you cannot go in person, the next best thing is to go by telephone. Often it is just as satisfactory.

Bell long distance lines reach everywhere.

NEW equipment now being added to our plant costs much more than equipment installed a few years ago. This adds greatly to the average cost of our entire plant and makes the average investment per telephone much greater. Revenues derived from the business must keep pace with this condition or the company cannot meet the demand for expansion and maintain the quality of service.
