

CITIZENS' TRAINING CAMPS TO OPEN SOON

Wilmette Boys Already Signing Up for Summer Outing at Government Expense

Official announcement has been made that the government will again conduct its thirty day summer camp at the various military training camps throughout the country for young men between the ages of 17 and 24 years.

These camps offer any young man of good moral character, who can pass a satisfactory physical examination, an opportunity to enjoy 30 days of outdoor life with the entire cost paid for by the government.

A number of Wilmette boys have gone to the summer camps during the past few years and have all been very enthusiastic in praise of them. This year, several young men of the village have already signed up and are planning to take full advantage of the benefits derived from the camps.

For 30 days, a boy goes to camp and, in addition to learning the many interesting things about the workings of military life, builds up his health and increases his self-discipline, a quality so necessary to his success in life.

The mornings are usually taken up with lectures on military tactics, drill, practice with rifles or artillery and other interesting activities. The afternoons are devoted to baseball, tennis, swimming, diving and other athletic sports that build up strength and muscle.

For the boy who is uncertain about his plans for the summer, the Citizens Military Training Camp offers the answer to his problem. A world of good, healthful, outdoor life. Interesting every minute. Lots of good eats. Congenial, fun-loving companions. Just about everything an honest-to-goodness live young fellow could want.

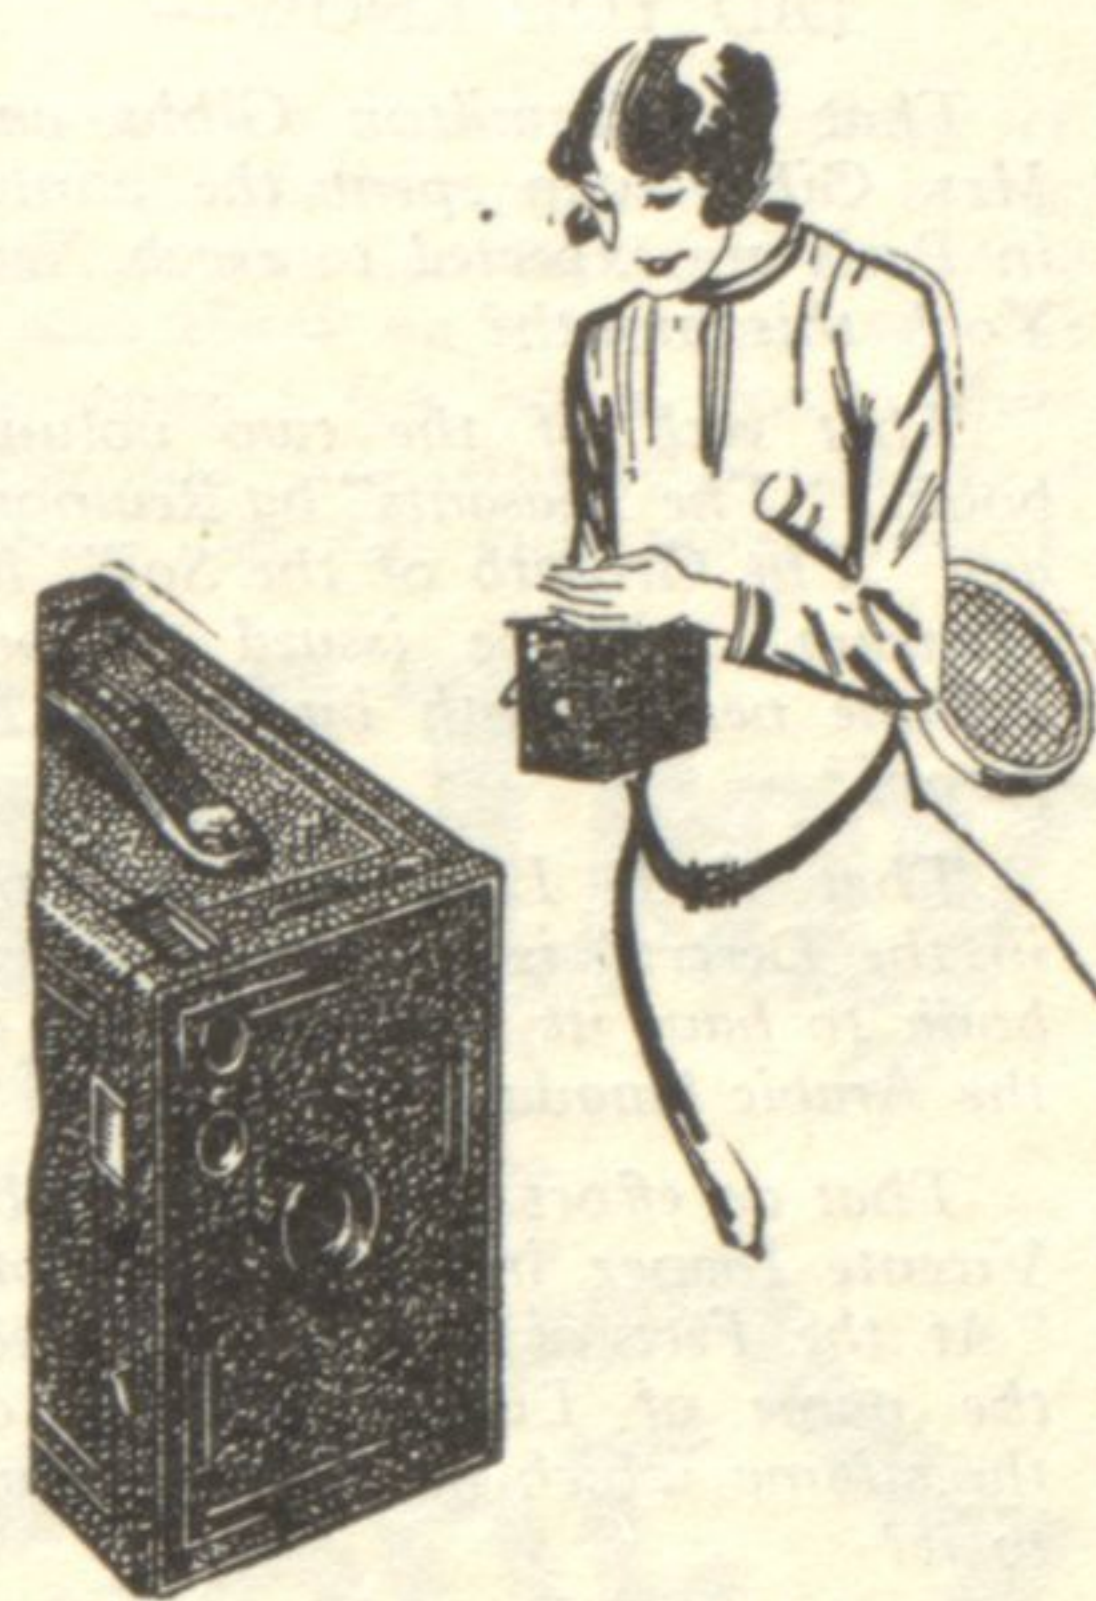

Wilmette is entitled to send a limited number to camp," according to Lieutenant Victor Klebba, the reserve army officer in charge of camp recruiting in Wilmette. Those who make early applications will, of course, be the favored ones when the final choice of applicants is made.

"One thing should be understood plainly," stated Lieutenant Klebba, "there is no further obligation than being at camp for 30 days. No 'strings' are attached to put an applicant into the army or anything of that sort." Anyone interested in going to camp may secure further information by calling or seeing the Lieutenant at 1526 Central avenue, phone Wilmette 3478, or one of the Wilmette reserve officers or the American Legion.
