Corinne Griffith in "Three Hours" at Norshore

From riches to rags is the evolution through which beautiful Corinne Griffith as an outcast wife, passes in her new picture, "Three Hours," which comes to the Norshore theater Sunday.

Her role is that of a society matron who is the victim of circumstantial evidence and the wrath of an insanely jealous husband. This is the sort of story you enjoy more if you have not been told too much of the plot, so it will be enough to say that it begins on a foggy afternoon when Corinne Griffith, begging for funds, meets John Bowers. After she has been given a sum of money, she steals his wallet.

The story sets forth her adventure during the following three hours, the ending of which is truly remarkable and far from the beaten path of the usual photoplay. Add to this a stage show that sizzles with speed and diversity and you have a program certain to satisfy and please the most discriminating.

THE VARSITY

Max Reem, noted Danish creator, who designed the costumes worn by Greta Garbo in Ibanez' "Torrent," designed the gowns worn by Lillian Gish in "The Scarlet Letter," which will come soon to the Varsity.

"The Beloved Rogue" with John Barrymore comes to the Varsity Monday. Wednesday the showing will be "Tip-Toes," the film version of the Broadway musical play, with Dorothy Gish, Will Rogers and Nelson Keys the principal fun makers. Friday will bring Raymond Griffith in "Wedding Bills," also a Rin-Tin-Tin feature, "Tracked by the Police."

Francis Neir of 201 Ninth street returned Sunday from Brown university.

Sparkling Week's Program Scheduled by Village Theatre

"Land Beyond the Law"

A phase of history in the great colonization of the West thus far neglected by motion pictures is a vital part of "The Land Beyond the Law," the new First National Western production starring Ken Maynard which will be presented at the Village Theater Monday and Tuesday. While fiction and screen have shown the trials and tribulations of covered wagon caravans as being due principally to Indians, lack of water, shortage of food, no picture thus far has shown one of the bitterest enemies of settlers in the early days, who caused most of the trouble for those desiring to establish homes in new territory.

"The Land Beyond the Law" shows how gunmen and cattle rustlers, headed by a dishonest cattle baron, were brought to terms when the United States government took a hand.

"Frisco Sally Levy"

"Frisco Sally Levy," a sparkling comedy romance of Irish-Jewish life with Sally O'Neil and Roy D'Arcy, comes Tuesday and Wednesday. William Beaudine, who directed Mary Pickford in "Little Annie Rooney," directed this new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen hit, in which Sally O'Neil plays the part of a hoydenish and impudent girl courted by two lovers. Roy D'Arcy is the Jewish lover and Charles Delaney the Irish suitor. Tenen Holtz contributes a distinguished bit of character acting to this film as Sally's father, and Kate Price as her mother does equally good work.

The story is rich in humor, pathos and heart interest, being so profoundly true to life as to hold the attention from the first reel to the last.

"The Fire Brigade"

Not since Charles Ray played in "The Girl I Loved" has he had a part that approached in dramatic sincerity that of Terry O'Neill in "The Fire Brigade," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which is to be seen at the Village theatre on Friday and Saturday.

During the last year Ray has become identified with whimsical comedy roles such as the ones he played in "Bright Lights," "The Auction Block," and "Paris," and has shown a delightful versatility of characterization in these parts.

However, Terry O'Neill is a part that would delight the heart of any actor, and one that afforded Ray opportunities he had never before been granted. The story covers a considerable period, taking Terry through the "rookie" stage to that of a fire engineer, showing the suspense that attends a fireman, and his everyday heroism. The role, which inclines to the dramatic, is balanced by a wealth of typical Charles Ray comedy.

May McAvoy has the feminine lead opposite Ray, and the cast includes Holmes Herbert, Tom O'Brien, Eugenie Besserer, Warner P. Richmond, Bert Woodruff, Vivian Ogden, De Witt Jennings, Dan Mason, James Bradbury, Jr., Erwin Connelly and others.
