

KINDERGARTEN COLLEGE OPENS SUMMER SESSION

Offer Many Valuable Courses in Classes Which Are to Open
Monday, June 20

The six-week summer session of the National Kindergarten and Elementary college will open on Monday, June 20, following registration on Friday and Saturday. Although the summer session of the college is designed primarily to meet the special problems of elementary teachers, kindergartners, nursery school workers and supervisors, it includes courses in religious education and other subjects of particular interest to the church school teacher; and parents will find the session an excellent introduction to child training.

Many of the regular members of the faculty will remain for the summer session, and several interesting additions have been made from the faculties of other colleges and universities. "Scientific Handling of Behavior Problems," a new course by Edna Dean Baker announced for the summer, will include the study of outstanding behavior problems with children and the application of the principles of mental hygiene and psychology to their successful solution.

Caroline Crawford McLean, formerly of Columbia university and well known as the author of several books of rhythms for children, will give the course in dramatic art, and Viggo Bovbjerg, a graduate of the School of Physical Education of Denmark, will conduct the classes in folk dancing. Manuscript handwriting, nursery school education and scientific studies in reading and English also appear on the program for the session.

Leaders in the field of education and research have been secured for the special lectures, which are given in Harrison hall during the summer and to which the public is invited. The following is a partial list of these lectures:

Monday, June 20, John J. B. Morgan, Northwestern university, "Behavior Clinic of Northwestern University"; June 27, Frank N. Freeman, professor of Educational Psychology, University of Chicago, "Effect of Environment and Training on a Child's Intellectual Development"; June 30, John E. Anderson, head of the Institute of Child Welfare, University of Minnesota, "University of Minnesota Child Development."

On July 8 William Scott Gray of the School of Education, University of Chicago, will speak on "Reading Preparation and Training"; July 11, Ethel Kawin, director of Pre-School and Nursery School branch, Illinois Institute of Juvenile Research, will speak on the work of the Institute; July 14,

Dr. John E. Stout, dean of the School of Education, Northwestern university, "General Importance and Control of Experimental Work."

Bird T. Baldwin, head of the Child Welfare Research station, University of Iowa, will speak on July 18, giving an outline of the work which is carried on so successfully there; on July 21, Norman E. Richardson, professor of religious education, Northwestern university, "A Study of Problem Experiences of Adolescent Girls"; July 25, Carleton W. Washburne, superintendent of schools, Winnetka, "The Winnetka Plan."
