

Dance Garden and Open Air Cafe on Roof of Orrington

The Orrington hotel's roof garden which has been remodeled into an attractive open air restaurant and dance garden with gay Japanese decorations will open tomorrow night. Duke Bigelow's popular nine-piece dance orchestra will play every night except Sunday from 6:30 to 9. Friday and Saturday nights the dancing will continue until midnight.

A spacious dance floor has been constructed on the roof around which are placed the tables. The roof ballroom has been redecorated and will be used on nights when the weather is unfavorable. Japanese lanterns which have been strung over the roof make a pleasant place to dine and dance.

Both formal and informal attire will be in vogue at all times. The management announces that patrons may feel at home either in business clothes or dress attire. Excellent cuisine at unusually reasonable prices is to be one of the features of the new open air restaurant. The Orrington hotel roof, said to be one of the finest in the Chicago area, will provide a cool place to dine and dance this summer.
