

Workman Finds Jewelry Kenilworth Woman Lost

Jewelry valued at $4,500 and lost August 25, by Mrs. W. C. Snoddy of 227 Raleigh road, Kenilworth, was found by a laborer working on the excavations for a new building at Michigan avenue and Erie street, Chicago. Mrs. Snoddy had tied the jewelry, consisting of two bracelets and two rings, in a handkerchief and placed them in her lap while she was driving downtown. Parking the car at the Erie and Michigan corner, she made a tour of the shops and then missed the jewelry. Mr. Snoddy asked the foreman of the building to have the workmen look for the jewels as they worked, and offered a $500 reward to the finder.

The Switchboard

A WEB of cords that end in numbered holes. A hand, poised ready to answer signals which flash from tiny lamps. A mind, alert for prompt and accurate performance of a vital service. A devotion to duty inspired by a sense of the public's reliance on that service.

Every section of a telephone switchboard typifies the co-ordination of human effort and mechanism that makes possible America's far-reaching telephone service. Its cords link for instant speech those who are separated by a continent. Its guardian operator is one of an army of telephone men and women vigilant to meet a nation's need for communications.

In plant and personnel, the Bell System is in effect a vast switchboard serving a nation that has been transformed into a neighborhood through telephone growth and development.
