Furnishing of Club House Keeps Board and Workmen Busy

Paint pots and canvas are still to be stumbled over at the Margarita club, but out of the months of building melee there is emerging one of the most thoroughly lovely residences for employed women ever erected.

Not until the return of Mrs. Edward Hines from abroad, about September 17, will plans be made for the formal opening and tea which will present the club to the public; but registrations are now coming in for rooms, and it is expected that the building will be occupied September 15.

Women Busy, Too

Workmen, putting the final touches on the walls and floor, installing the elevators and other mechanical equipment, are no busier than the women supervising the outfitting. Mrs. Harry Boyd Hurd, Mrs. M. P. Cromling and others who are working on Mrs. Hines' board of directors and building committee, are putting in long hours of wearying labor in their effort to get the job done as soon and as well as possible. Every day finds them at their task, unpacking furniture, tugging it about, lifting mattresses, shoving things in place and getting all in readiness.

Its location in Oak avenue, south of Davis street and next door to the Catholic Woman's club, permits surroundings that are highly attractive. Trees arch before it and about it, and in all the four stories and English basement floor sunlight pours bountifully in. Windows all have the charm of small panes. There is a general impression of rich, soft interior in the walnut woodwork and furnishings and the brown blocked composition floors.

Walls are tinted in blue, pink or tan on the bedroom floors, and in the great living room a soft, lovely green blends walls, woodwork and window-casings.

Give Beautiful Prints

Furniture is going into place in the bedrooms—large, capacious dressers, single steel beds with excellent springs and mattresses, beautiful little writing tables with deep drawers, all of charming walnut finish. Up at the windows will soon go the beautiful English prints which an important firm of decorators is giving and hanging as its gift to the clubhouse—a service made possible only through its appreciation of Mrs. Hines' influence.

Down in the English basement diningroom the decorating is being completed. Pillars and castings are painted in soft Chinese blue with touches of gold. A Colonial wallpaper has been hung and Colonial chandeliers of crystal and pewter swing from ropes of soft blue velvet.

Equipment to excite any good house-keeper is being installed in the commodious kitchen—cafeteria provision for breakfasts, the only meal at which residents will serve themselves; several frigidaire units, a bread mixer, great range and ovens, a dish washer, a potato peeler, and considerable other labor-saving furnishings.

The completing of the clubhouse is being impatiently awaited by the large number of prospective residents, employed women between the ages of 20 and 35.

Illinois ranks third among the states in the manufacture of millinery and lace goods. One hundred and sixty-two plants employ 5,738 persons, salaries and wages, $7,670,000; value of products yearly about $23,750,000. New York and New Jersey lead.
