

Piper Pipes New Pipes and Passes Pipes to Kiddies

Hundreds of children from throughout the Hubbard Woods vicinity enjoyed the visit of the Pied Piper whom they met at the store of the G. L. Zick company, in the Aitken building on Linden avenue, Thursday afternoon.

A. G. Schuelke, as the modern Pied Piper, with his bright robes and an entrancing story of the comfort and service of the Pied Piper health shoes for children, sold by the Zick company, captivated his audience quite as completely as did the mythical character from Hamelin town in Brunswick, past which the River Weser flows, with his bewitching strains of music.

The store was completely packed with the audience of little folks, who listened attentively to the interesting story of the merits of the Pied Piper shoes, as related by Schuelke.

Then with the assistance of Walter Zick, the store's little guests were each presented with brightly colored Pied Piper hats and "horns," and with the Pied Piper as their leader, they marched through the streets of the village, as did the children in the story town of Hamelin.

Unlike the story march, however, there were lacking sweet strains of music from the Pied Piper's pipe, in the place of which was to be heard a veritable din from the scores of horns. And the Schuelke march, instead of terminating in a mysterious cavern, ended at the Zick store, where the happy boys and girls were each presented a pretty little book containing stories of the Pied Piper of Hamelin—past which town the river Weser flows—and the Pied Piper shoes for children, made at Wausau, Wis., on the banks of the Wisconsin river.

Mrs. Walter H. Andersen of 127 Robsart road, Kenilworth, returned recently from a two-weeks' visit to Milton, Wis., with her aunt, Mrs. Loth, and her two sons. Before that Mr. and Mrs. Andersen went to Alaska with members of the Lake Shore Athletic club, and also spent some time at Lake Louise and Banff, passing through Yellowstone National park on their way home.
