F. L. Streed, village manager of Kenilworth, and George R. Young, village manager of Glencoe, will be among those attending the fourth annual meeting of the Lake Michigan Sanitation congress which will be held at the Claydon hotel in Waukegan on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

The meetings of the congress, which is composed of representatives and alternates of the various municipalities adjoining Lake Michigan or drawing water therefrom are for the purpose of promoting sanitation in dealing with the operation of the various municipal plants that come in contact with the lake as well as the supervision of public use of the lake.

Many prominent speakers will address the Congress during its two-day session. They will speak on ways and means to improve the sanitation of Lake Michigan. Among those who will talk are: Dr. Herman M. Bundesen, Chicago health commissioner, whose subject will be: "The Problem of the Chicago Health Department"; Major Henry W. Lee, president of the Congress; and State Sanitary Engineers E. D. Rich, Lewis S. Finch, C. M. Baker and Harry F. Ferguson.

The meeting will be called to order by Major Lee, whose address will be followed by a speech of welcome by L. J. Yager, mayor of Waukegan. A banquet will be held on Friday evening, after which Dr. Bundesen's talk is scheduled.

On Saturday the visiting delegates have been invited to make a tour of inspection of the new North Side sewage treatment works, situated at Howard street and the North Shore Channel, Niles Center. The plant is of the actuated sludge type, and embodies all the latest and best ideas of sewage disposal. Automobile transportation for the visit will be furnished to all who wish to attend.

Those who will be present at the nearly completed plant to explain its function are: L. C. Whittemore, assistant sanitation engineer, B. T. Curtis, resident engineer of the Sanitary District of Chicago, and several others.

Mrs. W. A. Landgras of Denver has returned to her home after visiting her sister, Mrs. Thomas E. O'Neill of 102 Church road.
