

In Recital

By CRITIC

Miss Isabel Cline of Kenilworth, soprano, who has been closely associated with the musical life of the north shore a number of years, was Bertha Ott's soloist Tuesday evening at Kimball hall in a song recital of unusual artistic merit. She was accompanied by Blanche Prince, and her program, which was arranged in four groups of German, Italian, French and English, offered technical difficulties that none but an artist could overcome.

During the course of the evening the program called for a range of nearly three octaves, and Miss Cline's voice responded with such ease that few of her audience were even aware of the magnitude of the task. The quality of her voice was clear and smooth throughout, with no break in register, but her soft tones in particular were remarkable for their audibility and sweetness. Only exceptionally thorough training could bring about such perfect control of a voice and such absolute precision in singing.

The soloist's charming appearance and graceful manner added further to the pleasure of the evening.

This is not the first time Miss Cline has appeared before audiences in and around Chicago. She has sung at Ravinia and has been prominent as well in Ravinia club work, acting this year as chairman of the children's Thursday afternoons and also as town chairman from Kenilworth.

Miss Cline has studied here under Richard Hageman, and in Paris under Pierre LeCompte, but most of her work has been in the east under L. A. Torrens. She spent the last three seasons in the east and returned to Chicago this spring after singing in Montreal, at the Vermont State Festival, in Syracuse, and Oberlin.

Tuesday was the occasion of her first concert of the present season. She will fill engagements in Kansas City, Tulsa, Dallas, New Orleans, Nashville, and Memphis, before returning to New York in January.
