Urges Rotarians to Join Battle Forces in White Plague War

Gang wars and consignment of library treasures to the flames to the contrary notwithstanding, Chicago boasts a single achievement which ranks her as foremost among cities of the world in its contribution to human advancement and gives her a place of permanent acclaim in history, in the opinion of Prof. William L. Bailey, head of the sociology department at Northwestern university. That achievement has been the reduction through sanitation and other kindred agencies of Chicago's mortality rate to the point where it is by far the lowest of any large city in the Park Woman's club last Tuesday.

world, Professor Bailey told Wilmette Rotarians at their luncheon Wednesday of this week.

In his talk on health, with particular reference to the work of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute, Professor Bailey issued a challenge to the Rotarians to join with other civic forces in seeking out and eliminating the "social causes of tuberculosis."

Physicians have waged a successful battle against tuberculosis, he said. They are perfectly able to cope with the disease but it now remains for the "social engineer" to ferret out and attack the underlying causes of the dreaded white plague, which have to do with purely social conditions in the community. Health ranks high among the vital factors in establishing a lofty standard of community life, he declared.

Professor Bailey praised the effective and far-reaching work of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute and urged the Rotarians to assume an active interest in its health, social service and educational enterprises.
